The Council set Monday April 10, 1916, as clean up day. Each property owner must pay the cost of hauling his own garbage away.

Every household must clean up all garbage as there is a stringent ordinance covering this and it will be enforced if the occasion arises.

Woman's Club.

A special meeting of the Women's Club was called by the president on Thursday afternoon. Plans were discussed for the observation of Western Produce Consumers week. B. H. G. Kistner, representative of the Ellison White Lyceum Bureau was present and endeavored to secure a contract for a lecture course for Sandy next winter but Club members decided to reserve their efforts for furthering local enterprises.

High School Notes

Much excitement was prevalent in town Sunday evening March 26, when the news came that Mae Moore could not be found. The town was searched from end to end by a couple of her belated classmates. No one had seen her. The only clue to her disappearance was the disappearance of one of Sandy's prominent young men. All kinds of rumors were afloat. The search lasted from six until ten p. m. The searchers finally returned to Esson's house from which they started. It was suggested they search Mae's room for a clue. A whole procession at once proceeded to Mae's room. They opened the door and found Mae fast asleep having been there all the time. The searchers wish to know who this joke is on.

Carrie DeShazer, Ruby Wilkins and Florence Lamoreaux visited the Firwood school Friday afternoon. They were excused from school for contributing ten rocks to the school collection.

The school board have decided not to engage Mr. Warner to teach the Union High next year. They considered that he did not have sufficient control over the students and that the school was run disorderly. They have not elected his successor.

The debate in English class Thursday, March 30th was "Resolved that the Chinese and Japanese Exclusion Act should be repealed." Mary Junker and George Cooper on the affirmative side won against Carrie DeShazer and Ralph Ganger, the negative side. On the same question Ruth Revenue and Florence Lamoreaux on the negative won from Lily Jonsrud and Raymond Murray.

It is reported that there was a serious case of gout at Bull Run.

A Student Body meeting was held Thursday, March 30th in which the Student Body gave Mr. Warner authority to purchase the piano which he selected last Saturday while in Portland. A committee was also appointed to arrange for a held meet and an entertainment after Easter.

Public thanks are due P. R. Meinig bringing the Student Bodies' piano from Portland for them. We need a few more such public spirited men.

We wish to thank the Clackamas County Bank for the loan which enabled us to purchase the piano for cash thus saving very much.

Dorothy Couper and Mae Moore will spend Friday night and Saturday with their parents at Cherryville. Lulu Roberts will accompany Dorothy.

Mr. Warner made a business trip to Portland Friday. The school voted to have school anyway and elected Kate Junker to act as teacher. The pupils were a credit to themselves by their behavior.

Harvey Gibson

On The Republican Ticket

In announcing his candidacy for Commissioner Mr. Gibson says he has no interests to serve but the people's interest; that he goes into the contest with the firm determination, if successful, to give his time and thought to the advancement of the public welfare, and that he considers the road problem the most important matter before the people to-day.

Mr. Gibson is a resident of Barton and has lived in Clackamas County forty-five years. He is well known in that community as a successful farmer and has a large acquaintance throughout the County. Mr. Gibson's interest in public affairs is shown in the fact that his neighbors have retained him in the capacity of school clerk and school director continuously during the last twenty-six years.

A Musician's Memory.

I carry my thoughts about me for a long time, often a very long time, before I write them down. Meanwhile my memory is so faithful that I am sure never to forget, not even in years, a theme that has once occurred to me. I change many things, discard and try again until I am satisfied. You will ask me where I get my ideas. That I cannot tell you with certainty. They come unsummoned, directly, indirectly—I could seize them with my hands—out in the open air, in the woods, while walking, in the silence of the nights, early in the morning, incited by moods which are translated by the poet into words, by me into tones that sound and roar and storm about me until I have set them down in notes.—Beethoven.

Stingy.

"They tell me that Blank is awfully stingy."
"He is! Why, if that fellow killed two birds with one stone he would want the stone back!"—Exchange.

LURE OF THE EASY CHAIR.

Do Not Let It Wean You From Good Healthful Exercise.

The United States public health service has issued a bulletin against the rocking chair, the "old armchair," about which poets have woven some of their prettiest verse; the office chair and any sort of a chair so comfortable in form that it invites repose.

Not because germs of a deadly sort lurk in the easy chair, upholstered or plain. Not for that reason does the health service of our government condemn it, but because a man with an easy chair at hand is likely to form the habit of sitting in it when he ought to be up and around, taking exercise that he must have if he is to keep well.

The easy chair is to blame for much of the heart and kidney disease, appendicitis and indigestion which afflict the business men of our day and carry so many of them off when they ought to be in the prime of life. These diseases were almost unknown a generation ago, when men worked more in the open air. Walking was the thing that kept them well and strong up to eighty and ninety years of age.

But now men sit as they ride to and from work in motor or street cars. They sit at their work in office or factory. About the only so called "exercise" many of them get is riding in a motorcar. It is a "sitting down" age, and the government warns of its dangers.

Negative Judgments.

Negative things often show positive traits. For example, it is fairly safe to judge a man by the company he quits and by the things he does not say.—Youth's Companion.
