High School Notes

With the exception of Clara Harbison who is still ill with tonsillitis, we have had a perfect attendance. Clara is reported to be much better and will soon be back in her old place.

The Student Body met and committees were appointed to look after the High school play and contemplated field meet. Watch for the advertisement of the play and be prepared for a laugh that will make your sides ache.

The new piano is a great help in our singing and it makes an improvement in the looks of the room.

Don't be surprised if you see the H. S. boys running and jumping to and from school for they are only training for the field meet at Eugene.

Spring fever is very contagious. With only Mr. Warner to fight it off it keeps him quite busy but seemingly he is successful.

The business arithmetic class has been having an interesting study making plans and selecting furnishings for a house. The recitation period has been quite heated on account of the many different opinions of the many girls. The boys have little to say and little chance to say that little. But their time is coming.

Kate and Mary Junker made a trip to Portland Saturday, April 1st, and returned Sunday. They say the roads are fine for the little Ford.

The bachelor girls have been presented with a lovely black and white dog. They can neither give it away nor sell it.

BULL RUN

A general meeting was held in the Bull Run Union Sunday School on Sunday the 9th, to elect a business committee for the Sunday school. The following were elected: Miss Hazel Keller, secretary; J. GRANGE MEETS Sandy Grange No. 392 met in regular session last Saturday with a good attendance. The subject of holding a fair at Sandy some time this fall was taken up, having received liberal encouragement from the business people and citizens. A committee of five was appointed to take charge of the arrangements to be made. The children as well as grown up's should be interested in this fair. Start now and help boost our community to a successful fair this fall.

UPPER COTTRELL

Miss Alice O'Neal, of Portland spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Lewis Hauglum.

Mrs. Hans Koch entertained several of her lady friends at her place one day last week.

The same thing happened at Orient last Friday night. Our girls won easily by the score of 15 to 13 but the boys lost by a rather large score. The Orient people made their brags that their girls would win by a large score, but when they lost they felt rather down hearted and even turned up their noses at our girls. The boys were worse sports yet and even threw chalk, rocks and all kinds of stuff at our people while they ate lunch in the school house. However it was not the players themselves who did it all but a bunch of hoodlums who had no respect for themselves or anybody else.

The school children are practicing for the track meet which is to be held at Borng next Saturday.

Emma Koch had the misfortune to sprain her thumb this week and she will not be able to play basket ball for a week or so.

Farmers Take Notice.

The following rules have been adopted by the City of Portland:

A Meat inspection station was opened yesterday at East Seventy-ninth and East Stark streets by Chief Meat Inspector Chase. This location was selected, as it is easily accessible from all the thoroughfares running into the city from the eastern part of the county. It will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week from 8:30 to 11:30 a. m. Carcasses of animals butchered for food to be sold in this city will be inspected and stamped. Farmers who find it inconvenient to go to this booth may have their meat inspected at the commission houses. Dr. Chase has issued a set of rules to be followed in the slaughter of animals for food. They are:

1. Animals should be slaughtered the evening before the day of delivery.

2. No animal should be slaughtered when in a heated condition or after being driven any distance.

3. Pure water only must be used for washing carcasses.

4. All carcasses must be inspected and passed on before being offered for sale.

5. The following organs must be left in carcasses by their natural attachments: Calves, sheep and goats must have the liver and kidneys attached. Hogs, kidneys and body lymphatic glands. Beef, liver.

6. Veal, under 60 pounds or under six weeks old should not be slaughtered. All veal should be in a well-nourished condition.

7. All wagons or conveyances in which meat is hauled must be kept clean and the bottom must be covered with clean burlap, clean straw or some other clean material.

All carcasses or portions of the same must be covered with clean covers while being transported.

It takes two to make a quarrel, but it takes only one reckless driver to make an automobile accident.

At The Bungalow.

Wednesday, April 19th, a two-reel special Feature Comedy entitled, "A Pair of Queens" and a one-reel Drama entitled "Loves Rescue". Admission 5 and 10c.

BREAKING INTO FARMING.

Some Advice to Those Who Yearn to Woo the Soil.

"How can I make a start?" ask men who have grown tired of uncongenial positions.

Certain things seem clear. First, the individual must decide for himself just which line of work he prefers, and then he should secure a good knowledge of the theory of it. The next thing is to develop a knowledge of the practice of the work, and about the only way to do so is actually to work awhile at it. Don't be too badly alarmed. In this day the farming businesses are crying for labor, and the workers are paid well for their services.

Next, he ought never to buy a place "unseen." He should look over the prospective farm, consider location, soil, climate, markets and labor conditions. In short, he must be prepared to handle a farm business like any other business. He must be prepared for hard physical and keen mental work.

If he is capable of these, especially of the latter, he need not be afraid to venture into a farming proposition, for it will repay his efforts. But if he hasn't this ability let him stay right where he is.

Never let him attempt to show the natives how to farm, for without good business management behind it he will find farming about the hardest work with the poorest pay on earth.—Justus Miller in Countryside Magazine.

One Way to Get Fame.

Walter was something of a wag.

One day his father said to him:

"See here, my son. You must begin to think of the future. What are you going to do to gain fame and fortune when you grow up?"

"I'm going to make toothpicks," answered the boy.

"Going to make toothpicks! I don't understand how you'll ever become famous."

"Why, father, it will be easy enough. I'll manufacture millions upon millions of them, and on each I'll stamp my name. The toothpicks will be in everybody's mouth, of course, and so will my name. And if my name is in every one's mouth I shall be famous enough."

"Well, well," said the astonished gentleman, "I think I would do well to let that boy alone."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Her Suspicion.

"I declare for it," said Aunt Fretty Frawlts to Mrs. Judge Tubman. "I believe old Captain Peggington is thinking about marrying again. Burt Blurt says the cap'n painted up his wooden leg yesterday. Burt didn't tell me, but he told Ellick Smart, and Ellick repeated it to his sister Prissy, and Prissy told it to Phenny Partlow, and Phenny told it to the sweet potato peddler, and the sweet potato peddler told me not ten minutes ago. So I guess it's so."—Kansas City Star.

Heavy Hearts.

Mr. Bacon—There, what did I tell you? This paper says the average man's heart weighs from ten to twelve ounces; the average woman's from eight to ten. Mrs. Bacon—Of course men's hearts weigh more. They are a good deal harder.—Yonkers Statesman.

Thorough Understanding.

"I presume you understand an auto thoroughly?"

"Thoroughly—that is, I know when it won't run there is something the matter with it."—Detroit Free Press.
