Quality Brings Quantity

When you employ a man to drive your team on the farm you do not select a weakling who would stagger under a fifty pound weight. You want a man.

When you want a horse for speed and endurance you do not pick up a sway backed, string halted and spavined plug. If you did you would live and die in the shadow of the same spot.

Then why should not the same far sighted sagacity be applied to the selection of your dairy stock?

Too many people are content to buy dairy stock of inferior breed and trust to quantity to produce the financial returns. Their expectations are seldom realized.

Quantity is quantity, but it is quality that brings the price. Quantity, in fact, is one of the underlying results of quality and the man who keeps up the quality invariably reaps the rewards of both quality and quantity.

There is no economy, no spirit of thrift in buying cheap dairy stock, for a cheap cow, like everything else cheap, is just simply cheap.

It is the essence of wisdom to get good stock and keep up the breed. The quantity of milk will be greater, the quality will be higher, and the financial returns will be larger.

Quality brings quantity, in dairying as in all other lines of business.

Is It Another Trick?

A great many people view Carranza's present role of "good Indian" with suspicion, and with reason.

Carranza is tottering on his throne. His power is on the wane. His army is disgruntled and his generals are dissatisfied and defiant.

And there's a reason.

The self styled first chief is out of money, and without money or loot or the prospect thereof the Mexican does not fight. He prefers to loll around in the sun and roll cigarettes.

There appears to be but one source from which the Mexican government can secure the financial assistance of which it stands so distressingly in need. That is from the United States. And we, strangely enough, seem to be willing to furnish the gold that will enable them to regain their position and ultimately turn their guns against us again.

No sooner had Carranza announced his desire to reopen diplomatic relations with Washington than the information was allowed to filter out that he was in the market for a big loan, and American financiers immediately pricked up their ears in anticipation of another slice of interest "bacon." Their patriotism appears to begin at one end of the pocketbook and end at the other.

The Mexican is an adept at playing good Indian when he has something to gain, and the first chief greatly desires American gold.

He may get it, but if he does we will probably soon be receiving bullets in return for it instead of interest money.

Keep both eyes on the good Indian, and don't let him come too close to you in the dark.

Scarcity resulting from the war has advanced the price of quinine 750 per cent. But who cares? We don't like the stuff anyway.

Of course famine is sweeping over northern Mexico. Villa and his horde are abroad again.

Then, perhaps, the junk dealers who follow the great battles of Europe will be the new plutocrats of the future.

This is a wide, wide world, but the public press places it on your breakfast table every morning.

Great men are often great in the eyes of everyone but those who know them best.

A clean town never needs to advertise the fact. It spreads.

A German submarine of powerful proportions crossed the Atlantic undetected and entered an American port. And yet we talk of our isolation rendering us immune from attack from abroad. We have much to learn and but few seem to do the learning.

Our own little border warfare appears to have reached the grasshopper stage.

"Perspiration" is the pass word on the border.

That man Villa is the most accommodating cuss on earth. Just when the daily press is short on material for scare heads he bobs up serenely and supplies the needful for more thrillers.

The heir to the British throne wants to marry a fifteen year old daughter of the Italian king. He has our consent.

There comes a time in the life of most men when they see their own imperfections more vividly than others see them. It is then that they are on the way to becoming better men of nobler deeds.

The smile of a good woman can pierce the darkest clouds of despair and illuminate the blackness of hope destroyed. It is woman's duty to smile.

The young man who is too good to work in time becomes the old man who can't get work. But the lesson is seldom learned until too late.

Life is just what each person makes it, but some are too lazy to do the making.

The man who hustles never has to wait for the fellow in front to get out of the way.

Any man can put in an hour or so in his garden each day and profit from the labor both in increased mental and physical development and in dollars and cents. Try it.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON FOR THE COUNTY OF CLACKAMAS.

Ezra C. Truman and Eliza J. Truman husband and wife, Plaintiffs vs

Elijah Coalman and Elvina C. Coalman, his wife, D. C. Latourette, Bank of Oregon City, a Corporation, Caspar Junker, F. L. Mack, Constable, and John Straus and W. A. Proctor, Defendants.

SUMMONS

To F. L. Mack, Constable, and John Straus, Defendants:

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you and each of you, in the above entitled action on or about the 12th day of August, 1916, and if you fail to answer or appear, for want thereof the plaintiffs will apply to the court for the relief demanded in their complaint, to-wit:

1st. That they have and recover from said defendants, Elijah Coalman and Elvina C. Coalman, his wife, or from either of them, the sum of FOUR THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED ($4,000.00) Dollars, principal, together with interest thereon at the rate of SEVEN (7) per cent per annum from the 3rd day of July 1914; the further sum of FIVE HUNDRED (500.00) DOLLARS attorney's fees; and their costs and disbursements herein. 2nd. That said mortgage be foreclosed and the premises covered thereby be sold by the sheriff of said Clackamas County, Oregon, according to Law and to the practice of this Court and that the plaintiffs, or either of them, be permitted TO PURCHASE said property upon execution sale by the Sheriff; 3rd. that the proceeds of the sale of said real property be applied; First, to the payment of costs and expenses of this suit and sale Second; to the payment of the amounts decreed to be due the plaintiffs from said defendants Elijah Coalman and Elvina C. Coalman, his wife, or from either of them; Third, that the balance be paid to the clerk of this Court to be distributed by him as by Law provided;

4th. That the defendants and each and all of them be barred and foreclosed of and enjoined from asserting any right, title, lien, claim or interest in or upon said real property or any part thereof, situated in the County of Clackamas, State of Oregon, and more particularly described in said mortgage as all of the South west quarter (S. W. 1/4) of Section Twenty four, (24), in Township two (2) South, Range Seven (7) east of the Willamette Meridian, in the County of Clackamas, State of Oregon, containing one hundred sixty (160) acres according to the Government survey thereof, except only the statutory right of redemption, and Fifth, for such further and different relief as may to this Court seem meet and proper.

This summons is served upon you by publication and published by virtue of an order made and entered herein on the 22nd day of June 1916, by J. U. Campbell, Judge of the above entitled Court directing the same to be published in the Sandy News, a newspaper of general circulation, published at Sandy in Clackamas County Oregon, and ordering that said publication be made at least once a week for six consecutive weeks.

Take Care of the Brood Sow.

Probably 75 per cent of the losses of young pigs are due to ignorance or neglect on the part of the owner in selecting, feeding and caring for the brood sow and not more than 25 per cent to bad weather conditions, inexperienced sows and other unavoidable things.

Power of Words.

"For me," writes Lafcadio Hearn in the "Japanese Letters of Lafcadio Hearn." "words have color, form, character. They have faces, ports, manners, gesticulations; they have moods, humors, eccentricities; they have tints, tones, personalities."

A good instance of this power appears in a description of Patti's singing: "There was a great dim pressure, a stifling heat, a whispering of silks, a weight of toilet perfumes. Then came an awful hush. All the silks stopped whispering. And then suddenly sweetened out through that dead, hot air a clear, cool, tense thread gust of melody unlike any sound I ever heard before save—in tropical nights—from the throat of a mocking bird. It was 'Auld Lang Syne' only, but with never a tremolo or artifice, a marvelous, audacious simplicity of utterance."

Mixed Metaphor.

King Edward VII., when he was Prince of Wales, once made a funny mixture of metaphors. In reply to certain inquiries and admonitions he said, "I will do my best to walk in my father's footsteps, which you have held up for my imitation."
