You Know the Bank

But Does
The Bank Know you?

Banks are often asked if such and such a person is reliable, or entitled to credit. If you are a depositor, the bank knows your worth and can give you a rating. Otherwise a bank is often compelled to withhold a favorable rating purely through lack of information relative to your financial status.

A bank account is your best endorsement. It stamps you as a man of affairs.

Story of a Bakeshop.

In Braunschweig, a quaint old German town, is pointed out the building—still used as a bakeshop—where Till Eulenspiegel, famous as a jester in the fourteenth century, worked as a boy. Many persons who have listened to the musical composition "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," which enshrines his name, have never associated this with the merry baker boy of Braunschweig. He is credited with having made many little gingerbread owls and monkeys, which he gave away to children. The shop at 11 Backerint still does a thriving business.

PARTING SALUTATIONS.

Those Used in Different Nations Are Very Much Alike.

The parting salutations of various nations are strikingly alike. The vale of the Latins corresponds with the similar expression of the Greeks, and, though piety is not expressed distinctly in either, it was doubtless understood, for who can be kept in health without, as the ancients would say, the will of the gods?

The Greek word perhaps has a higher signification than the Latin, for it was not a mere complimentary salutation. St. John forbids it to be given to heretical teachers.

The French on taking leave say, "Adieu," thus distinctly recognizing the providential power of the Creator, and the same meaning is indeed conveyed in our own word "goodby," which is a corruption of "God be with you."

The Irish in their warmth of manner and love of words often extend the expression.

A well known guide, upon one of our friends leaving one of the loveliest spots in Wicklow, shook hands with him heartily and said in a voice somewhat more tremulous through age than it was when Tom Moore loved to listen to it:

"God Almighty bless you, be with you and guide you safely to your journey's end!"

This salutation, when used thoughtfully and aright, has not only a pleasant sound, but deep meaning.—Philadelphia Inquirer.
