"For Sandy Always."

100,000 Spies.

Newspaper reports sent broadcast over the country from Washington tell us that there are a hundred thousand spies of foreign governments in the United States, and that these people are daily collecting information of our defensive measures and forwarding that information to their home governments. If there are that number of spies in this country our own government officials must be aware of the identity of at least a portion of them. And if their identities are known why is it that they are still at large and pursuing their despicable calling to the detriment of the United States? Why are they not behind the bars, where they should be, and where they would be if it were any country but ours? We do not need traitors or spies in this country, and the sooner they are kicked out or jailed or hung the better it will be for our own welfare. The man who can not respect and protect our flag and our country has no legitimate place in our midst, and we do not want him. Get out!

Universal Service.

A year ago only a handful of people could be found who were in favor of universal military service. Now the man who opposes such service is the exception. Americans are essentially a fair minded people when facts are brought forcibly to their attention, and this fact has been exemplified in the tremendous change of national sentiment regarding universal service. Daily papers of the great cities assert that the principal objection to universal service comes from the rural districts. But the daily papers are wrong. The young men of our own community are on a par with those of other rural districts, and yet we unhesitatingly assert that no where in this broad land will be found a more unified or patriotic sentiment than that which exists in the hearts of our own young men. If the best interests of the country demand that each one, rich and poor alike, shall serve his six months in a training camp, then when the time comes we will find them stepping briskly to the front, with heads erect and eyes upon the flag of freedom. There will be no shirking, or quibbling, or hanging back on the part of our young men.

What shall we do with the food price boosters? There is no place in heaven for them, for that is reserved for human beings. We can't send them to jail, for that would be cruelty to the other inmates. Hell won't have them for the devil refuses to associate with anyone worse than himself. What shall we do with them?

If gold is scarce you might bring us a spud on subscription.

When all other measures fail, we might fill the army up on raw onions and sick them onto the enemy.

With the advent of spring comes a relief from the coal man. But, then, the ice man is right at his heels.

Yes, talk is cheap—even in congress.

Henry Ford says the government can have his entire plant in the event of war. Perhaps Mr. Bryan will enlist.

When universal service hits us, what rank do you want? A colonelcy would about fit us.

Strange, indeed no one has thought to harness the shark and employ it in submarine warfare.

"What is life?" inquires an inquisitive reader. And right here we balk. We're hanging on like grim death and asking no fool questions.

When one fool meets another fool and both fools go to asking fool questions we immediately conclude that they are candidates for office.

Never lend money to a stranger. Steer him gently into the back yard, hand him an ax, and discourse learnedly on the angelic beauties of manual labor. But don't lend him money.

The death of Funston brings forcibly to the fore that fact that all great men are human and must some day hand in their checks. We are resigned.

No, William, we have never killed a man. But Lord, that don't mean that we never felt like it, with delinquent subscribers enriching themselves while we stagger under the price of print paper.

Yes, all women are beautiful and of angelic disposition. Now watch us surround a swell Sunday dinner.

HIS LOVE FOR HIS DEAD.

He Made It a Power to Gladden Some of the Needy Living.

A little old man came into the office of the Chicago Charities the other day and laid down $150. "to help out some needy families." Then he told them a story:

"Years ago, when all of my folks were living, I couldn't afford to give presents. Things are different now, but most of my folks have gone. I went shopping, just as if my folks were alive. I picked out a shawl for an aunt of mine. She's dead and so I didn't buy it, but I put down the amount of money I would have spent. Then I went and got some things for my dead brother and for my father and mother and for a few old friends of mine. I didn't really get them, you know, but I priced the things I thought they would like. When I added up all the money I would have spent it came to almost $150, so I added a little to it, and here it is."

Has any one heard of a finer, more beautiful way of showing a man's love for his dead? The things he had wanted to do it was too late to do now. He might, it is true, have spent money on stone to make more artificial and melancholy the quiet hillside where "his folks" rest. He found a better way to spend his affection, to remember in fancy those he could no longer reach and then to see that his loving memory of them went to make others happier. He made his love for his dead a power to gladden the living. He laid tribute on grief and made it a blessing. It is not a sad story. We need not pity him. But we cannot help loving him.—Milwaukee Journal.

Hardening the Team.

Give the horses all the work possible from now on to fit them for plowing, the hardest work they will be called upon to perform. Begin to feed them full rations and spend much time in cleaning to rid them of their winter coat of hair and dust.

STOCK NOTES.

Clean, fresh water every day for the sheep flock is a hard and fast rule.
Do not stuff the colt with coarse fodder. If you do you will make it dyspeptic and subject to colic in after years.
Dishwater and such stuff should go down the drainpipe.
Washing powders have no place in the ration for the pigs.
No matter what a horse's gait, he should move easily. When buying, think of this.
There will be loss with the pigs if they are not made comfortable.
Don't feed timothy hay to sheep. Mixed hay or clover or alfalfa should be given to the flock.

Join the Pay Up Crowd.

John D. Rockefeller often referred proudly to the fact that when he was making $25 a month he made it a point to pay all his bills promptly. He also managed to save a little money that later became the foundation of his great fortune. When you pay your bills promptly you know just where you are at. Pay up is becoming a national slogan. Cities and states have inaugurated pay up days and pay up weeks. The man who pays his bills when they are due feels better for it. There is no doubt that he makes the man he owes feel better. Do your part in the pay up campaign. Pay now.

Know all writers, compositors and proofreaders by these presents: Marks of parentheses (which are frequently required) are not to be confounded with brackets ("Hear, hear!"), which serve a different purpose. The use of one for the other [vide almost any newspaper page] is extremely sloppy (if you know what we mean) and exhibits lack of familiarity with or indifference to the technique of writing [Applause.]

MOTION PICTURE NOVELTY.

Statues That Are Made to Dance, and Jump and Fight.

The motion picture folk have hit upon a novelty called "animated sculpture," which means that they take statues and make them move. The feat isn't as hard as it seems, although the work required is much greater than drawing hundreds of pictures with pen and ink for a movie cartoon.

The figures are first modeled in clay, then changed to different poses and photographed one by one. The photos are thrown on the screen without a break, so that they jump about as if they were real. The effect is startlingly realistic and highly amusing. In one of the films only recently completed there are no less than nine figures, all of them moving about as if they were flesh and blood. The rather jerky action serves only to enhance the amusing result.

To appreciate the amount of work required in making these new films it must be remembered that each time one of the sculptured figures moves a new pose must be made. This means, in other words, that the camera must stop until the sculptor goes over each plastic figure and molds it into the correct position before he can photograph it. There are sixteen different poses to a foot of film. Hence for the ordinary reel of 1,000 feet there are 16,000 separate poses for each figure. Imagine the work required when three or more figures have to be made for each scene!—Popular Science Monthly.

Truly Remarkable.

"That's a wonderful child you have."
"Yes, indeed. What impresses you as being most remarkable about him?"
"The fact that he'll show off when you want him to."—Detroit Free Press.
