FIRWOOD.

March 22nd

The program given at the Firwood school Friday, March 16th, was enjoyed by those present. Refreshments were served at noon. Prof. Brehant, Ruby Wilkins and Carrie DeShazer, of Sandy, attended the program.

Godfried Stucki was a Portland visitor the first of the week.

Rev. Cole, of Portland, preached at the school house Sunday and will preach every third Sunday.

Miss Ruth Hart and Howard Woods, of Gaston, Oregon, were married by J. Wirtz Wednesday at the home of the bride. Her mother gave a party Saturday night. About 40 were present and had a very enjoyable time. The bride was dressed in pink and wore a bouquet of pink carnations and fern. Mr. and Mrs. Woods left for Gaston Sunday where they will make their home.

Mrs. F. Alt visited her daughter Mrs. Ned Nelson Saturday.

Anton Malar bought some seed oats and vetch of Wm. Bell Tuesday.

Viola DeShazer helped Alice Roberts with her work Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirby of Portland, and Mr. and Mrs. Murray of Cherryville, visited their sister, Mrs. Sinclair, the last of the week and also attended the wedding party.

Rev. Minor was the dinner guest of J. C. Smith Sunday.

J. S. DeShazer hauled hay from Mr. Proctor's of Cottrell Saturday and Monday.

Lester Keenan returned to Portland Monday.

Home of a Workingman.

The mechanic who eats underdone biscuits in a leaky kitchen presided over by a discontented wife is not a good investment for his employer. Bad homes are as great an enemy to industrial improvement as bad habits, says Ida M. Tarbell in "New Ideals in Business."

"Competition itself is forcing employers to consider the outside life of their employees," says Miss Tarbell. "The first and most important thing they must consider is the house the man lives in. A good workingman wants a home. He wants if possible to own his home. To have efficient, trustworthy and steady men you must have healthy and contented men. Men are neither healthy nor contented in wretched homes."

FARMING AND LIVE STOCK

SELECTING BROOD SOWS.

Points That Indicate Fecundity and Good Constitution.

Prospective brood sows should be selected from the best animals in the herd, always taking those whose mothers are gentle, good milkers and prolific, writes a correspondent of the American Agriculturist. The sow should have a smoother forehead and lighter, finer neck than the male. The forehead should be broad between the eyes, the throat clean and trim, neck moderately thin, shoulders smooth and deep, the back wide and straight and deeply fleshed with ribs well sprung; sides straight and deep, hams deep and well rounded, body rather long, but compact, and legs moderately short and strong. Select those with wide, deep chests and well sprung ribs, as it indicates strong constitution, a very important essential with good brood sows. It is not the fat, plump sows of the herd that make the best mothers, but rather the long bodied, more vigorous ones which show quality and have good grazing and feeding powers. Brood sows should not be overfed.

The successful breeder will never change an old sow for a young gilt until he is obliged to. The former will give two good litters annually, one early in the spring and the other in September or October. Handle the brood sows carefully at all times and keep them as gentle as possible. The picture shows mature brood sow with litter.

and delicate, as it is apt to lead to a weak constitution and possibly sterility.

Previous to farrowing the main demands upon a brood sow are those for building up new tissue. This means there should be plenty of protein in the ration, secured by feeding nitrogenous feeds. A few days previous to farrowing change to a sloppy food and bulky in character, like bran, and do not feed overgenerously. This will assist in avoiding constipation, so likely to occur at farrowing time and soon after. A box of charcoal, salt and ashes should be kept where they can get at it at all times summer or winter. A farmer who gives sows access to this mixture and varies the ration occasionally, providing sufficient protein, will not be troubled with sows eating their pigs.

Immediately after farrowing feed the sow sparingly. The first day or two give her nothing but a thin slop. Then a little more nutritive food can be given, like skim milk along with equal parts of cornmeal and middlings. By the time the pigs are two weeks old the sow should receive a full ration, practically all she will eat up clean, for the demands upon her at this time, if she has a good litter, are heavy, and there is nothing more important in the swine business than giving the youngsters a good start.

A good breeding sow should be kept in the herd as long as she gives good service, which may be six to eight years.
