Men of the Mounted

by Captain
G. Elliott-Nightingale
Copyright, WNU

THE SKULL WITH A HOLE IN ITS FOREHEAD

THEY found the headless body of an aged man on the banks of the Bow river right after the ice had gone out, and right away there was a check-up to find out who was missing. That was in June, 1910. Several months passed and then, just as the beautiful Bow was beginning to freeze up again, a trapper stumbled over a small boulder. Later on, upon examining the round thing that had tripped him, the trapper realized that he was handling a human skull. Like a good Canadian he was soon in touch with the Royal Mounted.

A physician and surgeon examined the remains. He announced, a little while later, that the man had been about fifty or sixty, had iron-gray hair, and that the hole in the forehead had been made by a bullet of .22 caliber, and that the bullet had been found imbedded in the skull. Moreover, there had been another bullet found in the body.

Soon all interest was centered upon the absence of one of the first settlers, an Englishman named Peach. In no time the Mounted discovered that Peach had sold out to a man named Robertson and had then returned to his home in England. Robertson was soon being questioned in a town a hundred miles away, and he corroborated the information of the deal with Peach. Later it was learned that Robertson had moved to Calgary after having bought the Peach homestead and that he had left orders that all mail for Peach be forwarded on to his address in Calgary. Well, this was really the first "break" for the Mounted. Why should Robertson want Peach's mail forwarded to him?

Robertson was again questioned, this time by a Mounted policeman he had never seen before but who knew the results of the first interview.

Robertson's story changed color entirely during this second questioning, but the Mounted policeman kept this discovery entirely to himself. Some days later another Man of the Mounted had a quiet little chat with Robertson, and again the latter's story changed completely. Surely Robertson was tying himself up. Visiting the town of Mc-Leod, he got drunk and was soon boasting that he had made a cleanup in the Yukon gold fields and was returning to his home in the states. And, as he sat boasting how tough he had been in his time, a constable of the McLeod detachment walked in and very quietly arrested him for the murder of Tucker Peach. Back in Calgary, Robertson tied himself in such a knot of lies and falsehoods that there was nothing else to do but confess. His confederate, one Fisk, had fired the first shot, into Peach's forehead.
He, Robertson, had fired the second.
Fisk had learned that Peach had a large amount of money hidden somewhere about his homestead cabin, and was scheming to get it when he met Robertson who was planning to buy the Peach homestead. "Buy it," advised Fisk, "then we'll knock him (Peach) on the head and get your money back.
Then we'll ransack the cabin and find the two thousand he has hidden somewhere in it. After that, you take the homestead, and I'll take the horses, and we split his money between us when we find it."

No one knows to this day whether Fisk and Robertson found the old man's hoard, but they do know that Canadian law worked fast, and smoothly as these two renegades were tried. Fisk was sentenced to hang. Robertson was given life imprisonment.

Glass Train

With the exception of the roof, the exterior of a train made in England is all of glass and more than 120,000 pieces of a special type were used to construct it. In the interior are glass floors and walls, a glass bathroom and pictures made of glass. The train was constructed by a Lancashire (England) firm of glassmakers to advertise its products.

"There's the Doorbell Again"

SUPPOSE daily to your door came the butcher, the grocer, the clothier, the furrier, the furniture man, and every other merchant with whom you deal? What a tedium of doorbell answering that would mean!

● It would be even more impractical for you to visit daily all these stores to find out what they have to offer and the price. And yet you need those merchants' service quite as much as they need your patronage. Contact between seller and consumer is essential in the supplying of human needs. Before a sale can be closed the goods must be offered. Every week, through the advertising columns of this newspaper, the merchants of this city come to your home with their choicest wares. Easily, quickly, you get the news of all that is worth while in the market-places of the world.

● They are not strangers at the door, but merchants you know and trust. You are surer of high quality and fair price when you buy an article advertised by a reputable firm.

Uncle Phil Says:

Blarney Is a Tonic

There's a great deal of blarney in the world, but not half enough.
No one is deceived by it and everybody likes it.

You are a fortunate man if you like to hear what people have to say. Those who don't listen are another type.

One doesn't wish so very much money; only enough to afford to hire someone to beat the rugs instead of doing it himself.

Nuisances of City Life

In the summer it's noise. In the winter time it's smoke. The solution: Take to the country.

Amusements that many people pursue are such because they have not the opportunity or money to pursue those they like better.

If you listen to your conscience at all times it may begin to swagger. But let it. It's entitled to swagger.

Secrets are a nuisance, both to those who have them and to those to whom they tell them.
