Peace on Earth Good Will Toward Men

What a beautiful sentiment! Were, that it were practiced throughout the world! As we prepare for a happy holiday let us give thought to those that are less fortunate than we in our expectations of celebrating a happy Christmas. Let us not forget that Christ was born to guide us through the trials and tribulations of our earthly life. Think of the millions of people who will be without homes, without food and without loved ones in the war torn countries of other parts of the world.

More money! More gifts! More time! How many of us are fussing and fretting because of such things. Little do we stop and think that after all a happy Christmas is judged more by the spiritual action and reactions than of the material. If your gift is small give or receive it with sincere spirit and it will be appreciated the more.

Sandy and community will join in a happy Christmas event tonight at the grade school where the large Odd Fellows and Rebekahs tree will be held. If all the communities of the world were at peace with each other as we are there would be no reason to preach, "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

Our Anniversary

We are preparing copy for ads and stories for our January 4th edition which will celebrate the first anniversary of The Sandy Post. We would like to put out an extra special paper boosting the surrounding community and stressing the fact that Sandy is the "Gateway to Mt. Hood." The time, January 4th is opportune to tie in with the beginning of the winter sports and we feel that by sending out an extra number of papers filled with the benefits and enjoyments of living in this part of the state we could really get over some good advertising.

However, we have decided to handle the edition from the shop without any specialized help and are asking this week for contributions from anyone who is interested. Have you a historical story, a booster story or any particular item of interest that would fit in with such an edition? We want stories of pioneers, old time events in Sandy and community, and future building activities anticipated.

This will be the first time in more than 20 years as near as we can determine that a newspaper has been published consecutively for 52 weeks in Sandy. Can't we make something out of that? To those who have an urge to write up their own community we will be more than glad to receive contributions; to all those in business, we want you to prepare or ask us to help you prepare, a story on the history of your business and an advertisement that will let the public know just what that business is.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

A large number of our subscribers joined the ranks in January and February of last year. Next week we will publish the list of those whose subscriptions expire at that time. We will do this in appreciation of your being the first to assist in starting the Sandy Post and also to give you a chance to come in on our special $1 day offered for January 6th.

It is customary to offer a special bargain time on subscriptions during the year and we wish to set our date for our anniversary edition, January 6th is the date of the first issue of The Sandy Post, but the 52nd issue will be noted on January 4th of 1939. This will enable us to hold open house on Friday, January 6th, for $1 day subscriptions and to get acquainted with our subscribers. If you haven't visited the office and plant, plan to drop in on that day and see just what we are doing. If we have given you the kind of paper you desire in a home town paper, plan to renew your subscription at that time and take advantage of the saving. For January 6th, and January 6th only, we will offer the paper for $1. For the remainder of the year the regular price of $1.50 will apply.

The annual Christmas program will be presented by the school children Thursday night at 8 p. m. at the school house. The children are being directed by Mrs. Sorg, and are planning an interesting program with plays, recitations, songs and a Christmas tree. There will be candy for all the children in the district, to be given away by Santa after the program.

The clinic held Tuesday by Dr. Courtney Smith was very successful. The majority of the children were examined and many received the smallpox vaccine. Many of the parents visited the school and attended the clinic with their children. Lunch was served at noon in the basement of the school.
