IN MEMORIAM

The office of the Sandy Post has been saddened this week by the illness death of Mrs. Olive Carter, of Salem, aunt of the editor. Mrs. Carter, who in all appearances was in good health, suffered a ruptured appendix a week ago Saturday and had been lingering between life and death for ten days. She was active in public life in Salem, taking part in many things and had become to be recognized for her writings of verse, poetry and articles. She was a delegate from Salem to the National Rearmament conference at San Francisco last month and appeared on the speaker's platform during the conference at the world's fair.

To a Beloved Aunt

Memories of a courageous soul will linger with us for years to come as thoughts of our beloved aunt, Olive C. Carter, remains with us. She was the mother of seven children, whom she had reared almost entirely through her own efforts and the stability, character and hard work she had instilled in them. Although her husband was living, the responsibilities of the family stemmed to rest heaviest on her shoulders and being without financial independence, the burden at times was heavy.

With such a handicap she was unable to devote any time to her life interest of writing, etc., until in the last few years and the seemingly untimeliness of her death is a hard shock to bear. We only hope she has found her reward in heaven. Bess Streeter Aldrich's, "A Lantern in her Hand" typifies the life of service she gave her family.

The results were worthy: she leaves one son, John, now being schooled for a western managership of the International Harvester company; one son, Leslie, manager of his own store in Los Angeles; another son, Neal, with a position of responsibility in a chain grocery association; two daughters, well married, Mrs. Joe Miller and Mrs. Ralph Eyer, and a 14 year old daughter, all of Salem. Another son with his father is "somewhere in Kansas."

Six of her children and the editor were with her during the last hours of her illness, as well as a sister, Mrs. J. D. House, of Vale. Six brothers remain, Bob, Fred and Ben Crummett, of Ontario and Vale, Roy and Emanuel of San Francisco, and Pete of Roseburg.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon to pay the last earthly honors to one who leaves behind many who have found her life a shining mark in the darkness and who will miss her ever-ready smile.

tainly not in the immediate future. In any case the need for increases in supplies can be anticipated in ample time to make any necessary increases in acreages. The production of large quantities of agricultural commodities for which there is no satisfactory market could prove just as demoralizing in wartime as in peacetime.

"I would remind American farmers that the loans which are a part of the Ever-Normal Granary are available right now to prevent price collapse. They can prevent such a disaster to farmers as befell cotton growers, for example, in 1914-25.

"I would remind American farmers of these facts: This year's wheat carry-over is estimated at 254 million bushels, in comparison to 115 million bushels for the five years from 1924 to 1928.

"A slightly smaller production of corn this year than last is expected, but the present large carry-over probably will make the total 1939-40 supply even larger than the 1938-20 supply of two billion nine hundred million bushels. Much of the carry-over of both corn and wheat is being held by farmers under loan as part of the Ever-Normal Granary. Through the granary, in fact, our carry-over of corn has been increased from an average of less than 200,000,000 to over 450,000,000 bushels. These added supplies will be available for feeding if the demand for pork and other livestock products rises sharply in the near future. They remove the necessity for increased planting that might ultimately be ruinous. Furthermore, the corn supply is a protection against any feed shortage that might be caused by drought in 1940 or succeeding years.

"Supplies of meat animals are expected to be larger next year. Inspected slaughter of hogs in 1939-40 probably will be 7 million head greater than during 1938-39. The total number of cattle on January 1, 1940, is expected to be about one million head larger than a year earlier, although the total slaughter for 1940 may be the same, or slightly smaller than for 1939.

"Combined supplies of cottonseed oil, lard, and soybean oil available for home consumption will be larger during the rest of this year and 1940 than for 1938. (To Be Continued Next Week)
