Diesel Engine

THE Diesel engine that has been threatening to replace the gasoline-operated internal-combustion engine for many years, was patented almost 50 years ago. The man who invented it and for whom it is named was Rudolph Diesel, a German engineer who was born in Paris in 1858.

The main difference between a Diesel engine and a gasoline engine is that the Diesel explodes the fuel by compression instead of a spark and requires no carburetor system, no ignition system and burns crude oil instead of gasoline. The oil is made highly explosive under pressure in the cylinder and the heat of the pressure sets it off.

The Diesel engine made the German submarine far more effective in the 1914-1918 World war, increasing its cruising range. Normally operated by electric batteries, subs used the Diesel engine also to recharge the batteries and operate the submarines during that time, allowing them to remain away longer from their bases.

But Rudolph Diesel, although a German by race, worked for France, England, and America as well as Germany. He was drowned after falling from a boat in crossing the English channel to obey a call to consult with the British admiralty in 1913. It is believed that he was pushed off the boat to prevent plans of the German submarines falling into British hands.

Wilmot Proviso

IF YOU remember the American history you learned in school you will recall, of course, that the Wilmot Proviso was one of those acts of congress which was to "settle the slavery dispute." Introduced as an amendment to a bill appropriating $2,000,000 to purchase land from Mexico, it stipulated that "neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall ever exist in any part of the said territory."

That was the "proviso" part of the expression. But what about the "Wilmot?" That was David Wilmot, elected to the house as a Democrat in 1845, offered the amendment in 1846. It won in the house but failed in the senate; but it had done its work. Eventually, the United States won that land from Mexico by conquest but no slavery ever existed in it.

When the Republican party was formed, Wilmot joined it and was a delegate to its conventions in 1856 and 1860, acting as temporary chairman of the latter. He lost the race for governor of his native state of Pennsylvania in 1857 but continued to serve as president-judge of the Thirteenth Pennsylvania district until 1861 when he was elected United States senator. His term ended in 1863 when he became judge of the United States court of claims.

Wilmot died in 1888, leaving his name in the American history books even though he didn't leave much of a mark on American history.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

BETTE DAVIS has always made it very clear that she had the courage of her convictions. She's prepared to back one of her pet theories with coin of the realm right now, and John Garfield, James Cagney and Pat O'Brien are ready to string along with her.

She believes that Hollywood could be made a theatrical center, since there is all sorts of talent on the coast, and she and her partners are prepared to form an organization for producing plays—and also to act in them. Plays that succeed will be sent along to Broadway.

Olivia De Havilland hadn't much more than settled her differences with Warner Brothers than she got into hot water again by refusing to work in "Flight 8," and was suspended again. Virginia Bruce was free, after cancellation of her Metro contract, so you'll see her as the heroine, opposite Ralph Bellamy. The lovely Olivia seems to know what she wants—the difficulty lies in getting it.

Small boys—and their fathers as well—are likely to want to camp out in the theaters showing RKO's Pathe's Sportscope reel on baseball. It features the tactics and technique of such experts as Gabby Hartnett, Dizzy Dean, Joe Moore, Merrill May, Joe Medwick, Arky Vaughan and Paul Derringer. It's called "Pennant Chasers."

It's reunion on "Big Sister" for Alice Frost and Zasu Pitts. Alice broke into radio years ago by doing impersonations of Zasu, as taught her by Miss Pitts, a friend of the family.

Erin O'Brien Moore will appear as Empress Carlotta, the role created by Bette Davis on the screen, when she is heard on the Star Theater in "Juarez and Maximilian" on March 13. Aherne will play Maximilian, as he did in the picture.

Metro is prepared to shoot the works and give the public a treat in "Boom Town"; Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr will have the leading roles, Jack Conway will direct, and John Lee Mahin adapted the story for the screen.

Strange Facts

Human Hair Mats
Buddhist Masses
Beetles on Pay Roll

Several cottonseed oil mills in the South still use the coarse hair of Chinese women to weave the mats through which the oil is separated from the seeds after they have been mashed by hydraulic process. One large mill in Memphis purchases 2,000 heads of such hair a month for this purpose.

The Japanese hold the world's most sentimental ceremonies—Buddhist masses for the "souls" of such objects as ships that have been sunk, oysters that have been eaten, dolls that have been smashed and needles that have been broken in the past year.

Because of its high nitrogen content, most of the hogs' hairs obtained in the slaughtering houses of this country is made into fertilizer.

The American Museum of Natural History in New York keeps a small "army" of live beetles, whose job is to clean the bones of animals before they are mounted.—Collier's.

Million-Year-Old Insects

We are able to examine flies a million years old that have been preserved in amber, a gum from trees, but now the museums will rival Nature by storing beetles, butterflies, and plants for posterity in a new kind of gum called methacrylate. This is clear and hard as glass, of the same order as the elastic bendable glass now being produced.

The new material is made in two kinds, one for preserving leaves and plants, the other for insects.
