IN TIME OF PEACE THINK OF WAR

In the armory of the ancient Republic of Venice is an inscription which reads: "Happy is that city which in time of peace thinks of war."

Some soft-minded sentimentalists refuse to think of war, will be assured of peace. We have seen what has happened to some countries where such an attitude prevailed.

When the proposal was first broached, last Summer, for the registration of all young Americans of military age and the conscription of many of them for military training, a loud howl went up from the sentimentalists who refuse to face the possibility of war.

Fortunately the sane and sensible view prevailed in Congress, and the nation's first peace-time conscription law was enacted.

Contrary to the predictions of pacifists and alarmists, the registration was not accompanied by riots and disorder. Nothing more peaceful or orderly ever occurred touching the lives of 17 million persons on one day than the procession of young men to the registration offices on the 16th of October. There is no reason to expect that when numbers have been allotted and drawn there will be any more resistance to the draft.

To us the whole procedure furnishes the most complete refutation of the oft-repeated charge that the young men of America have turned pacifist. The talk about youth's "dis-illusionment with democratic ideals and its unwillingness to fight for them turns out to be so much bunk perpetrated by a few academic radicals.

We hope none of the boys who registered the other day will ever have to fight, but we feel that by their very enthusiasm they have established this country as one of the happy nations which in time of peace thinks of war.

KELSO

Mrs. R. J. Arnett was called to California last Sunday, on account of the serious illness of her father.

BOOK WEEK NOVEMBER 10-16

Next week, from November 10 to 16 is National Book Week, when attention is called to one of our country's greatest institutions, the Free Public Library, which makes access to information, recreation and research, through books and magazines easily possible to all. An informed people will remain a free and a happy people, therefore every community should nurture and help maintain a public library as a necessity of welfare.

The best proof of the value of our Sandy Public Library to the town and surrounding communities lies in the steady increase of circulation, which during the past month of October has reached an all-time high of 1014. This means that new and more books are in constant demand, for a library as well as its patrons has an insatiable appetite for more.

During this week we should like to add to the library through donations. The newer books are the more desirable, also current magazines. A milk bottle on the librarian's desk is used for cash donations, with which new books will be purchased. We take this means of thanking every donor who places a book or magazine in the library, or a cash donation in the bottle, during book week.

Mrs. Robert Jonerud,
Chairman Library Board.

Sandy High School News

(By Lois Shearman)

LAUGHING GAS is the title of this year's senior play which is to be presented November 15, in the Sandy High School auditorium at 8:00 P. M.

The cast has been chosen as follows:

Mrs. Merlino, an Italian landlady, June Koch.
Penny Whitman, a young visitor in New York, Barbara Pagh.
Miss Amy Whitman, her aunt, Margaret Breen.
Olga, a Swedish housemaid, Lois Madsen.
Vivian Whitman, Penny's sister Eleanor Schneider.

Chris Wynn, a young detective story writer, Bill Compton.
Flavia Winterspear, a modern poet, Lois Shearman.
Paul Van Doren, a radio actor, Roy Allen.

Kitty Doe, a chorus girl, Betty Koennecke.

Ambrose Rosenbloom, a policeman, Harold Glover.

Judge Haley, Robert Williams.

The play is a mystery farce in three acts, with lots of thrills and action going on all the time.

Mrs. Wallace Buchanan is directing this play, and Miss Marion Griffith is acting as assistant director.

At the last meeting of the Big Nine League, four new schools were voted in as members. The schools were, Molalla, Woodburn, Silverton and West Linn. These four schools making a total of 10 schools in the league.

The new schools in the league will compete with other schools in boxing, track, baseball, basketball and wrestling.

This week the Glee Club and also the Girls Sextette have begun work on their Christmas songs for a Christmas program which is to be presented sometime in December.

The new bus garage which is being built for Sandy High School, by NYA work, under the supervision of Roy Hickty is very nearly completed. The roofing and other small parts are now being added.

The Sandy Gridsters met Molalla High on Molalla's field last Friday to find out who was the best at carrying that pigskin. The game ended with a 7-0 score in favor of Molalla.

Thursday, November 7, the Sandy Big Eleven will meet the team of Woodburn on Sandy's own G. D. Orr field.

We have a very good chance of winning this game in as much as the teams are pretty evenly matched, said Coach 'Pop' Ranow at Sandy High Schools last general assembly last Tuesday.

The game will start at about 2 P. M.

There has been an orchestra organized at Sandy High School by Bill Howard, a past graduate who is very much interested in music.

Those in the orchestra are: Beverly Gray and Betty Woodcock, saxophones; Ray King, trombone; Johnny Weeks, drum; Paul Lansdown, piano; and Bill Howard, bass horn.

For engagements, see Bill Howard, manager.
