Marmot

(By M. M. Aschoff)

Some twenty-five years ago, Otto Aschoff was roaming the mountains east of Marmot, hunting with his good hound, Leader, when on they way home, both tired and weary, after a long journey, Leader left the trail some distance, and began barking as if he had had something up a tree.

Upon first thought, Otto felt he was too tired to follow, but reconsidering, he decided it would not show good sportsmanship to desert his dog, so he went to him. In a large cedar tree near the ground, was a dug-out in the body of the tree in which was a large bear, just awakening from a long winter's nap. With continuous barking, the dog had held the bear at bay, until his master arrived and shot him. Before he had finished the killing, the dog's attention was again attracted and renewed his fierce barking. Otto looked around in time to see a second bear leaving another nearby tree, but was too late to get him.

From that day on, those two trees have been known as "Otto's Bear Trees," and every year since then, during hibernating season, he has made a visit to those trees, during which time he has killed as many as six bears, who have want there to take their winter's sleep. His dog, Leader, died some years ago.

There were no bears in the trees this winter, as in the past two years, but according to past experiences, next winter would be the winter for another bear to choose one of the two trees for their hold up place.

Though the trip is more arduous than in years past, when Otto was a younger man, he is eager for another trip to his bear trees.

Mr. Henry had a painful week of it, after being rushed to the Veteran's Hospital, the first of the month, with an infected finger. Though he is more cheerful, the finger may yet have to be amputated.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Lloyd, also Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lloyd, of Forest Grove, were callers at the home of their daughter and sister, Mrs. H. J. Stevenson.

News has reached Marmot that Mr. Dave Sandstrom, who was guard at Little Sandy Guard Station, for the Forest Service last year, is sick in the Veteran's Hospital in Portland.

Mr. Ed Ten Eyck had the misfortune to lose one of his milch

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Taylor were visitors at the home of Mr. Guy Wilcox Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Taylor and family were visitors in Sandy Friday.

Mrs. Guy Wilcox and Doris were at the shower of Mrs. Fred Hemmers, Thursday evening.

Mrs. De Shazer was a visitor at the school, getting news for the paper Thursday.

The Taylor children were out of school, being legally absent to go to see Dr. Platner last Friday. We are glad when there is any doubt as to the children's condition, these parents cooperate.

A party was planned last week, for sometime in the future for a man whom the Dover children all like very much and appreciate. He is a teacher, but not a grade school teacher. He is a High school teacher, of Sandy, Mr. Dooley. Seldom have we seen a man more generous than he. This appreciation is due Mr. Dooley, for his interest in helping our children get to and from school. This generous service could only be fully appreciated, if it were to go. Thus we are inviting all parents and children and relatives of children, including, especially Sandy High students to a
