HOWDY FOLKS:

They had grown wealthy suddenly and had purchased a farm, complete with hens, cows, and pigs. Said a visitor one day:

"Do your hens lay eggs?"
"Oh, they can," was the lofty reply, "but in our position they don't have to."

Grandfather used a roller towel, a comb suspended from a string, and a dipper shared by all, and lived to be eighty-six. Grandson fights germs and dies exhausted at fifty.

Mrs. Newdriver (to garage mechanic): "They tell me I have a short circuit. Can you lengthen it while I wait?"

"Daddy, what effect does the moon have on the tide?"
"Not any, son. Only on the untied."

STILL A DEMOCRACY

War and defense must not be used as an excuse for neglecting our responsibilities as citizens. Our industries, our farms, our factories are part and parcel of our free enterprise system. Their problems are of direct concern to every citizen — representative government cannot live without free enterprise. The task all face now is to prove that, while maintaining representative government, we can compete and win in any contest the ruthless total governments force upon us.
