More About Oregon

river that was too shallow to be navigated successfully by even a small river boat. Washington Irving, the celebrated novelist, said the Platte was a most magnificent and most useless of streams. Artemus Ward, the great humorist suggested that the Platte would be a good river if set on edge. Bill Nye described the river as having a wide circulation but little influence.

Buffalo country now spread before them and the great plains attracted their attention. Soil was sandy and traveling was slow. Wood was very scarce but a substitute was found which French trappers called bois de vache and Americans called buffalo chips. One of the main jobs of the women and children was gathering of chips for the fires. Buffalo were seen in great numbers and the hunters had no difficulty in supplying the emigrant with a great plenty of meat. Peter Burnett declared the meat of the buffalo was the sweetest meat in the world and was much better than beef.

Sioux, Cheyenne and Ojapahoe Indians roamed the country, but their chief mischief consisted in running off the livestock of the emigrants.

LOCAL NEWS

Sandy Woman's Club met in regular session today at the Club House. Most important business of the day was the election of the Club officers for the coming year. Officers chosen were: Mrs. Ed Bruns, president; Mrs. Alfred Meling, vice president; Mrs. Oscar Gunderson, secretary; and Mrs. Lewis Hall, treasurer. Included in the election were Mrs. Olive Boeve, Mrs. R. S. Hall and Mrs. Sadie Bosholt, selected as trustees for the Club. Mrs. Frank Rehberg installed the new officers.

Charles Woodcock, who is stationed at Farragut, Idaho, is now spending a nine day leave at his home and visiting with his many friends in Sandy. He says he sure likes the navy.

Dr. A. Williams was awakened recently by somebody with evil intent - the outer lock on his door was broken - but he says the bolt inside was too tough - which gave him time to get a gun ready for action. Several women have also reported having heard footsteps at the door and fumbling of locks, at some early hour in the morning. Its time we all oil up the old shot guns.

Mr. and Mrs. Hard of Sandy were the parents of a newborn son last Friday.

The Oregon Geology Society will be the guests of Mr. H. E. Leash next Sunday.

Ivan Barker was a Sandy visitor last Sunday.

Mrs. Paul Ruffing of Les Vagus is visiting with her sister Mrs. Wayne Dibble. Both ladies are enjoying the occasion as they have not seen each other for over ten years.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kotzman and son are living in the former Bill Dodd house until they can build a residence on lots they have purchased from Mr. Ralph Harper. Kotzmans recently sold their home in the country.

Morris Hale is evidently in New Guinea, where there is much war business going on, according to a letter received by his parents. A brother of his is at Fort Logan, Colorado, and another brother is stationed at Burbank, Calif.

Sandy Community Church is proud to report that 48 of her young men are now in the service of our country in various parts of the world. So far none have been reported lost.

Milan Briles is attending the REA book keeping school at Eugene this week.

An REA Board meeting will be held next Monday evening at their local office.

Dr. Platner and family returned home after spending an enjoyable vacation for ten days with his folks in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Everet Poisel announce the birth of a son last Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Lucille Briles is enjoying a visit from her parents from California.

How many times has your dream of dressing up the closets gone smash because, when you really checked things over, the shelves were needed for storage.

This year you really can redecorate the closets for we've an idea that will give you loads of safe storage for all winter woollens and add charm and graciousness to your home all the year round!

New charm for your living room or hall and extra storage space for not-in-use woollens are combined in new cedar chests made of red cedar heartwood which insures moth protection. Exteriors are veneered in a wide variety of popular woods so that chests may be matched to other furniture.

Have you looked at cedar chests lately? If not, you've a beautiful surprise awaiting you for modern cedar chests are smart, attractive furniture that fits into any room in the house. They are as revealing of beauty and concealing of utility as the smile upon the lips of a woman in love.

Maybe you'd like a low modern piece in light color with a flat surface for magazines, flowers and ash trays... used as an occasional table between two cozy chairs. Then, by all means look at the new cedar chests in bleached woods styled in long, low lines.

And, for that window at the end of the hall where the space isn't wide enough for 3-cornered cabinets or chairs at the sides of the window but which looks so empty and uninviting, you can find a cedar chest for placing under the window, put a pillow or two on top of it, put some trailing vines at the sides of the window... and turn an eye sore into a haven of rest and beauty.

Then, there's high massive cedar chests the men will fancy because they appear so masculine, and delicate chests that give the final note of charm to the daintiest bedroom.

All these are yours for the looking, in modern or antique designs and wood. And, any of them will give you that extra, safe storage space you need before you can remove the clutter from the closets and decorate them as you've always wanted to do.

The annual hearing of the Oregon State Game Commission in regard to hunting regulations will be held at ten o'clock, Saturday, the 12th of June, at its offices in the Oregon Building, Portland.

Seasons, bag limits and other regulations governing the taking of game animals, game birds or furbearing animals will be considered at that time by the Commission.
