Republicans Will Win!

The Republicans will win '44 because the people of this nation are finally awakened to the urgent need of a change in Washington. They now realize individually, that the time-worn phrase, "Constitutional government" is the antithesis of the New Deal policy that favors government by law; regulation of public and private affairs by executive orders and fantastically conceived "directives" rather than by congressional enactments; and irresponsible expenditures of unlimited public funds by impractical and visionary executives who ignore or contravene statute requirements and the will of the people. Too, the majority of Americans are now agreed that no man is indispensable, whether he be the chief executive or one of his palace guard appointees—Andrew F. Schoepel, Governor of Kansas.

REPUBLICANS ADOPT CONSTRUCTIVE AND SOUND PLATFORM

The platform adopted by the Republican Convention at Chicago contains no "weasel" words. It is a frank and simply worded declaration of purposes with no opportunity for any misinterpretation. It outlines in definite terms a constructive program designed to relieve the people of bureaucratic regimentation; to put a stop to prodigal spending with continuing deficits; pledges the reestablishment of constitutional government, the free enterprise system and our American way of life.

Win the War Pledge.

The preamble is a tribute to the men and women of the Armed Forces with a pledge to prosecute the war, in cooperation with our Allies, until the Axis powers have been completely and decisively defeated; with no interference with the Office of Naval Operations as to the conduct of the war. With the final defeat of our enemies it promises the return of all those serving in the Armed Forces whose enlistment periods have expired and who do not volunteer for further overseas duty. It says: "We declare our relentless aim to win the war against all our enemies; for our American security and welfare; to make and keep the Axis powers impotent to renew tyranny and attack; for the attainment of peace and freedom based on justice and security. We shall seek to achieve such aims through organized international cooperation and not by joining a world state."

Postwar Foreign Policy.

It favors full responsible participation by the United States in post war cooperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world. It proposes definite methods of accomplishing such results, and very definitely proposes that the United States shall not sacrifice any of its sovereignty by becoming a part of a world state. While the platform would have this country assume a fair and full share of the responsibility for the rejuvenation of the world, and a maintenance of world peace it proposes methods of accomplishing such purposes through international cooperation, and not through the establishment of any super-government. On the prosecution of the war and the establishment and maintenance of world peace it leaves nothing to be guessed about or misinterpreted.

Farm Plank Definite.

On no subject is the platform more definite and emphatic than that of agriculture. It calls for full production at all times, without interference of any kind or any form of price for farm products that will mean farm prosperity. It would provide that price through tariff protection for the whole market; the establishment of support prices on the part of the government; commodity loans to the farmer; the development of new uses for farm surpluses; support of farm co-operatives; crop insurance; a soil conservation program, and other practical provisions to insure the farmer an income fair and equitable in comparison with labor, business and industry. It opposes subsidies in any form or any interference with farm management or farm production. It proposes to provide a market at a profitable price for whatever the farmer may produce and in whatever quantity. The farm program calls for the development of paved roads and the extension of rural electrification.

That farm plank provides for a practical solution for the farm problem without imposing bureaucratic regulations. It would make of every farmer, owner or tenant, a free and independent individual. Reduce Taxes and Waste.

On the subject of taxation and government expenditures the platform is decidedly definite and emphatic. With the ending of the war it calls for an immediate reduction of the rates of taxation on individual incomes, on corporations and consumption to such an extent as is consistent with the payment of the expenditures of an economically operated government, with a promise to eliminate from governmental costs every wasteful and unnecessary expenditure, including the discontinuance of the many duplicating government bureaus and agencies, and a reduction in government payrolls.

That plank definitely, and in no uncertain terms, rejects the New Deal theory of restoring or maintaining prosperity through government spending and deficit financing.

The above is a very brief summary of but a few of the planks of what is a truly remarkable and constructive platform. Those responsible for its preparation did not write words in criticism of the past, but confined their efforts to providing constructively for the future. It is an unusual political document that fully meets the needs of an unusual time in the history of the nation.
