CAUSE OF URBAN MOTOR COLLISIONS

A survey of traffic accidents in Oregon cities during the first six months of 1944 showed most urban collisions involve unsafe parking maneuvers and failure to yield right of way at intersections. Secretary of State Bob Farrell announced this week.

In cities where angle parking prevails a large proportion of the traffic accidents reported during the first half of the year involved vehicles backing away from the curb. Some of the vehicles backed into passing cars or sideswiped other cars. Several were struck by passing cars when the drivers failed to notice the backing away from the curb.

In cities where parallel parking prevails many accidents involve cars pulling out of the parking space while there were some involving cars that stopped to back into a parking space and were struck by the following car.

Approximately three-fourths of the intersection collisions reported in Oregon cities involve failure to yield right of way the survey showed. Rear-end collisions, occurring when the car ahead stopped suddenly and head-on collisions resulting from turning movements for a small percentage of the intersection accidents.

The survey shows clearly the need for greater care on the part of drivers leaving parked positions and for closer observance of the Oregon right of way law. Farrell said. "Prevention of accidents as cars leave parking positions rests on the driver of the parked car and the driver of the passing car assuming equal shares of the responsibility for safety. And at intersections remember that in Oregon the car on the right has the right of way, not the car first into the intersection."

Mrs. Mary Smith of Portland arrived Wednesday evening for a few days visit with her son W. O. Smith and family.
