Thanksgiving On Victory Day

"V-Day," the day of victory in the European war theatre will be a day for re-dedication on the part of the people of Oregon as well as a day of thanksgiving and appropriate rejoicing, Governor Earl Snell said this week.

"We must not and will not relax our all-out war effort in the midst of our rejoicing," the governor said. But, he said, "on that day toward which our valiant and allied armies are still striving in Europe, we shall pause to honor the heroes who have achieved victory in that area, and pay tribute to the great fighting forces of the allied nations."

He will issue a proclamation on V-day designating it as an occasion for thanksgiving the governor said and a day when fitting and appropriate tribute should be paid our fighting men.

"Here on the west coast we should be doubly aware of the job yet unfinished and the menace in the Pacific until Japan is conquered," the governor said.

DO YOUR FERTILIZING THIS FALL

Right now is the time to start planning for next year's pasture and hay crop. The best step in the right direction to insure milk production for next year is to apply commercial fertilizer or manure to pasture and haylands this fall. A fall application of fertilizer will not only increase the quantity, but the quality as well.

Why fertilize this fall? Because delivery is more certain than during the spring. There seems to be a great deal of fertilizer at hand, and many dairymen have manure left that they were unable to spread during the spring work.

Fall fertilization is a sound practice, very sound indeed. Great numbers of experiments in the past years have proven that fall fertilization gives an increase in yield equal to that obtained from spring application. There is nothing to be gained, in fact there is actually a loss, by waiting until spring to apply fertilizer. There is a labor shortage now, and who knows how it will be by next spring. Better do it now, you may be twice as busy next spring.

The ideal date to fertilize your pastures and haylands depends upon the time the land freezes, usually sometime between September 15th and October 15th.

A few helpful reminders are; apply five to ten twohorse spreader loads of fertilizer per acre; manure for top dressing should be applied during or just before a rain, or while the soil is quite moist; straight nitrogen fertilizer alone may be used on grass sod. Remember, plants, like animals, require a balanced and adequate diet.

SCHOOL CHILDREN PLACE OREGON TRAIL MARKERS

From the Pacific coast to the Missouri river cedar posts branded with the words "Old Oregon Trail" were placed this week by some 30,000 students in 300 of the schools thruout Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri in commemoration of the continental past to the sea followed by their ancestors when the west was still new.

Launched by the American Pioneer Trails association the post project has been placed in the hands of school children who will act as custodians of the markers and be responsible for their protection. During the ceremony, each pupil will place one stone on which is carved his name at the base of the post, forming upon completion a strengthening pyramid. Each marker will be dedicated by the school to an outstanding pioneer of covered wagon days.

Delivered by the State Highway commission on Trail marking day the posts will form monuments on the grounds of the schools nearest the original route of the Old Oregon Trail. Various business organizations and industry groups are sponsoring placements of the markers. Youth groups such as the boy scouts and 4-H clubs are actively participating in the scheduled ceremonies.

In Clackamas county markers were placed at Welches, Sandy, Sandy Ridge, Eagle Creek, Logan, Lower Logan, (Barton, Holcomb, Parkplace and Oregon City.

Markers were placed at the entrance of both the Sandy grade and Sandy Ridge schools.

Del Butler gave a talk at both these schools on the Old Oregon Trail and Mrs. J. M. C. Miller gave a talk on John Straus who left approximately 26 thousand dollars in property and cash for the Sandy Ridge school and also donated the land for the Sandy grade school. Mr. Straus was an early settler in this community and was king of the Sandy pioneer society in 1937.

NEW YORK, LOS ANGELES TOP OREGON FRUIT MARTS

New York is still by far the leading market for Oregon pears and fresh prunes but both Los Angeles and Chicago have passed it as an outlet for Oregon apples according to a statistical bulletin just issued by the extension service, OSC, "Oregon's Carlot Shipments and Unloads of Tree Fruits." Data for 1943 are included.

For the more perishable fruits Portland leads in taking cherry shipments, while San Francisco is the chief single market for the few Oregon peaches shipped.

Production of fruit shipped in car lots is concentrated almost entirely in the Southern Oregon and Columbia basin districts according to this bulletin prepared by the extension economics staff. These two regions supply 96 percent of the shipments with the Willamette valley and Snake river basins shipping 4 percent.

Pears led all fruits with 3191 cars shipped in 1943 or about 56 percent of the total. Apples were second with 1191 cars or 21 percent. Other fruits in order of importance for shipment rather than processing were fresh prunes, 788 cars; fresh cherries, 319; dried prunes, 124; fresh peaches, 18; apricots, 9; and mixed fruit 18 cars.

MRS. LEONA KUEHNER DIES IN NEBRASKA

Mrs. Nehler of Eagle Creek received a telegram Friday telling of the death of her sister Mrs. Leona Kuehner in a hospital at Grand Island, Neb. Mrs. Nehler visited her sister at her home near Doniphan two years ago. Mrs. Kuehner has been failing in health since her operation for cancer three years ago. She suffered a relapse and was confined to her bed for four months after the untimely death of her husband two years ago last June. He was taking a tractor with a power sweep home when the tractor went out of control, left the grade throwing him against a tree paralyzing the lower part of his body. He died two days later.

Had Mrs. Kuehner lived until October 21 she would have been 39 years old. She did all that was possible in her failing health to keep her three children in their own home sacrificing her own condition and complaining little. She finally had to give up and returned to the hospital in July where she died September 15th, 1944.

She leaves to mourn her loss her children, Margie, 13, Gerald 10, and Kenneth 5, her mother Mrs. Alvina Johnson, 5 brothers, Guy, Earl, Bud and Wesley all of Horace, Neb., and Sergt. ## SONSHIP VERSUS CITIZENSHIP

When this run-away lad of whom we spoke last week had "spent all" and had his "fling" he began to be in want. And so we read that, He went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his field to feed swine. And so wretched was his condition that tho he had been brot up under circumstances of splendid advantage, yet we find him experiencing such acute hunger as to envy the swin which fed greedily upon the roun corn.

Such is the good providence of God, We will say goodbye to our father and care nothing for him, but the first man we meet will be a rough one, and we should thank God for that! Paradoxical as it may sound, I do thank God that there are rough men into whose hands young people fall, who have attached value to a father's care and a mother's tender love. Young people who EXCHANGE Son-ship for Citizenship, will soon find that there is a rod in the law, that there is a God on the throne, and that no man can do wrong without having judgment and retribution visited upon him sooner or later.

If a man can go upon a course of sin and prodigality, and find peace and happiness at the end of such a road, then I say to you that life is a farce and destiny is indeed a cruel master.

But blessed be God it is not so. At the end of such a road there is want and friendliness, and pain and hunger. It is when we are reaping the fruits of our misdoings that we are stabel awake and brot to face our folly.

Yes sir this young man had to thank his swine-feeding, the famine, his hunger, the shivering, shelterless nights. THESE marked the beginning of his ultimate return to his father's home! And such has been the case of many today. We found no salvation in luxury; no sacred altar in the carpeted room. So long as we had everything within reach and call, we never lifted our hearts in thankful praise or humble prayer.—THE VILLAGE PASTOR.
