INCOME TAX TIME FOR FARMERS NEARING

With January 15 the important annual income tax date for farmers the county agent's office has obtained a supply of explanatory bulletins, report blanks and other information for any farmers in Clackamas county desiring such assistance, county agent J. J. Inskeep announced this week.

The bulletin issued by the United States department of agriculture is entitled "Farm Bookkeeping and the Federal Income Tax." It is revision of a similar bulletin issued a year ago and brought up to date in line with the provisions of the 1944 tax law. While the individual income tax act of 1944 simplified some of the requirements it did not materially affect the problem of determining the net profit from farm operations, Inskeep explains.

The bulletin explains the kinds of records that are needed for tax purposes, discusses returns made on both cash and accrual basis and shows how the various farm operations are to be reported for income tax purposes. For those farmers already keeping a regular set of books or farm accounts, the filling out of a return will be relatively easy says Inskeep. For those who have not kept books it still is not too late to gain some advantage by using a prepared account book to record the years transactions from memory.

The farm management department of Oregon state college has prepared three kinds of account books all of which are available at the county agents office. These are a five-year inventory book, an Oregon cash farm record book, and the complete Oregon farm account book. For those who desire a simple book in which to record the year's business transactions in advance of making the income tax return the Oregon cash farm account book is recommended by Inskeep. Explanatory statements as to who will profit by making out joint rather than separate income tax returns are also available.

For actual aid in filling out returns the bureau of internal revenue will have specialists available without cost as usual, in the principal towns in advance of the final date.
