GOVERNOR'S MANSION

South Carolina's governor's mansion at Columbia is clothed in history and romance that links the old and the new South. Built in 1855, it was originally the officers' barracks of the Arsenal Academy. It escaped the fire that swept part of the city that year and came through the War Between the States unscathed. Simple in construction, it is cooled by dense foliage of the beautiful trees smugling close. War Bonds have maintained a defense against injury to this historic gem and will guard it safely to peace.

Mrs. Agnes Teeters of the D. Day Cafe has been confined to her home a few days the past week on account of sickness.

Miss Nadine Caviness of Portland was a week end guest at the M. L. Persing home.

OH, OH!!!

At the party at Bull Run, little red wagon refused to budge. It didn't want to go home, despite Frank's pleading, so Big Mack came along and he pushed that wagon, that little red wagon, ahead of his nice, shiny Ford. Oh, Oh.

Green eyes says he's in the dog house now for sure.

Dun hear tell the gals drew straws as to who would take that gallant gent from Portland to lunch, and 'biful lady in bank' won. But woe and more woe, the losing gals crowded in the booth and our 'biful lady' had to share the adding machine man. Oh my goodness.

Hey, whose a biddy. Jeepers.

Dick says now begosh, he knows what he knows or thinks he does, an' he's agoin' to get even, gee weuns are scared.

Orville out before breakfast, theinairy bird catches the worm, I betcha, or does he.

Those men who cooked at the card party Saturday only had one chef's hat among them so they each had to parade around so weuns could see, they all looked grand and weuns would admit to have a picture of thtm. They sure were some committee. Weuns are for you, boys.

Edna G. hiding behind the counter, we gone seen you Edna.

Ivan looking bored, betcha he misses all them good lookin' nurses, gracious, me, I'm hiding now.

Mr. Hull in LaGourgue's all by his lonesome. Betcha he's done horseback riding.

CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME

Sometime we encounter those who style themselves as "practical people;" those seeking refuge in such narrow maxims as "charity begins at home." Nowthat, may be good enough for a pagan, but true Christianity knows nothing about such maxims. Christianity take in all time, all space, all human nature. Christianity is not willing to sit down to a feast so long as there is one vacant chair at a banquet table. True Christianity has never ceased to say with it's Master, "Yet there is room." Especially is there room for those who least think of it. Christianity would have YOU to feel and KNOW there is a place for You at the Lord's table.

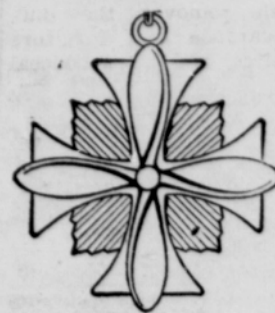

There is no room for the self-contented or the Pharisaical, but there is always room for the broken-hearted, the self-renouncing, the humble Christ seeking soul. Those who hide behind such maxims seek to avoid the daily conflict in the cause for others. "We love quietness," they say. Yet they do not know what quietness is. They think that quietness is indifference, carelessness, an indisposition to concern ourselves about anybody else's interest. That is not quietness, that is more nearly an approach to moral, mental and spiritual laziness.

Peace is not indifference. It is the last result of ten thousand conflicting forces. The peace for which we hope and strive in Europe and the world today, will be found beside the humble graves of our valiant dead, and the drumbeat of the marching feet of millions of unsung heroes who counted the interests of others worth the sweat and blood and tears expended on a thousand battlefields.

And it is thus we can only be at peace after we have been at war, and after we have accepted the music of the will of God and His all-encompassing love.

A love which impels us to say with the Apostle Paul, to the wholeworld, "I want you to know what a fight I am putting up for you . . . that your hearts may be cheered, I want you to be united in love."—The Village Pastor.

THIS GRAND MEDICINE

made especially to relieve 'PERIODIC'

FEMALE PAIN

And Its Weak, Cranky, Nervous Feelings—

Take heed if you, like so many women and girls on such days suffer from cramps, headaches, backache, weak, nervous feelings, distress of "irregularities"—due to functional monthly disturbances. Start at once—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms because this famous medicine has a soothing effect on one of woman's most important organs. Taken regularly throughout the month—it helps build up resistance against such symptoms. Thousands upon thousands of women report benefits!

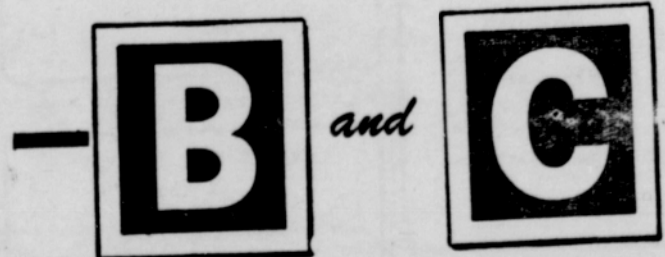

There are no harmful opiates in Pinkham's Compound—it is made from nature's own roots and herbs (plus Vitamin B₁) to restore nature. Also a fine stomachic tonic! Follow label directions. Worth trying!

Lydia E. Pinkham's VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Released by U. S. War Department, Bureau of Public Relations
AUTUMN IN FRENCH CAPITAL—He was a lucky GI who was privileged "off limits" for a tour of Paris in a horse-drawn victoria. Note the interest of the Parisian girl on the bicycle.
