THE DAFFODILS ARE OUT—

The glorious gold of the daffodils again is covering the countryside in the large bulb-growing areas around Sandy. Each year they bring their gorgeous color to highlight the first weeks of spring, and each year local residents look forward to a drive out through the daffodil fields.

The northeastern Clackamas and eastern Multnomah county area has become one of the top bulb producing areas in the world. Its products are shipped everywhere to bring color and joy to folks in far off states and nations. We who reside in this area are fortunate indeed to have so close at hand the rare treat of acre after acre of blooming daffodils in the fields of Jan de-Graff's Oregon Bulb Farms and in the numerous other smaller operations in the Corbett area and scattered throughout this territory.

If you are a newcomer who has not yet tasted the thrill of a drive through our daffodil fields, don't miss it. Once you have made it, we're sure you will want to continue it once or even more often each year.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE —

A few days ago we talked with a farmer down Portland way who had recently acquired a sizable tract of land near Sandy. We asked his purpose in adding this land to his holdings and his answer was a most interesting one.

"Portland is pushing out to the east pretty fast," said our farmer friend. "It isn't going to be too long before some of the land I am now farming will be too valuable for crop production. I'm a farmer, and I want to keep right on being a farmer. The only way I can do it is to have farm land that is not so valuable that I can't afford to farm it."

There is a lot of good farm land around Sandy that still is undeveloped, but which should supply a fine backlog for a growing agriculture and a growing prosperity in this area. One secret of this future success will be the development of suitable land in tracts sufficiently large to permit sound crop rotations. Too long and too heavy cropping will soon put otherwise good land in such a sad state as to make it of little value for agricultural purposes.

If present property owners in the Sandy area will look to the future and plan wisely, they will reap a fine harvest, whether they continue as producers or whether they later dispose of their holdings to others for farm purposes.

Lumbering is currently the backbone of this community's economy, but everything points to a gradual transition of that economy from one of lumber to one of agriculture. As Portland expands to the east, more and more of the fine land now in crops will be absorbed by city subdivisions. Yet that same growth will create an ever greater demand for the produce of the farm. The close-in farms will have a big advantage in the sale of truck and specialty crops, and as the expansion of the city continues, the farms of the Sandy area become more and more the "close-in" farms.

It is a good thing for this community that County Agent John J. Inskip has established a part-time extension service office in Sandy. It will be a still better thing if the maximum possible use is made of that service as an aid to developing our local agriculture along the soundest possible lines.

Gosh, are all the young people of today reactionaries? If they aren't how can we account for their fond embracing of the square dance?

Advent of the operation of the new Mt. Hood Skiway is creating much interest and enthusiasm, not only in the Mt. Hood area but in many far sections of the country. There is little doubt but that the new tramway will fast develop into one of the big tourist attractions of the west coast.

Letter To the Editor

To Sandy Post Readers:

Let this be a warning to the Sandy City Council from a taxpayer who has been in Sandy for 42 years and was also one of the first councilmen in the City of Sandy and served in that capacity for 12 years and helped build the first city water system.

I noted in The Sandy Post of April 6 that the city council has decided to push the sewers through private property, whether or no.

Also I noted they were VERY considerate in not mentioning any of the objectors names.

This is directed at Sandy's elected servants:

My name is at least one that you may mention as being an objector and you may be interested in knowing that I am ready to fight to the last ditch any such procedure as you, the elected council of Sandy, and your engineers and your attorney are trying to put through.

You city officials also may say that by starting condemnation proceedings against our property that you will bring objectors out into the open.

Please be advised, that you do not have to bring any such proceedings in order to bring we property holders into the open—just to take shots at us.

We are not wild animals nor are we criminals. You don't have to think of a ruse to bring us into the open. We are in the open and we will stand on our two feet and tell you what we think—anytime!

We are and have been peaceful and law abiding citizens of this city for several years. Many of us have seen it develop from a very small burg.

You do not have to think up means to make us the target of public ridicule. We are citizens who will support any measure that will benefit the city and we are willing to do it without public pressure.

Encroaching on the property rights of your citizens is not, or never can be a benefit to our city.

I must say, I never have seen such rotten legislation in all my born days!

Under the present action and setup, I feel that a recall procedure is in order and I would be most happy to start it.

To The Editor:

We notice that Stan Skoko is asking for the Democratic nomination by the people of Clackamas county for Judge. We, personally, are glad. We live in a country that largely depends for its livelihood on the logging and sawmill industry.

Stan has shown a willingness in the upkeep of the roads, cooperating with the sawmills and loggers.

It is refreshing to see a man asking for public office who is so happy and so young and vigorous.

Good luck to you, Stan.

Welches Lady Has A Surprise Party

By Nell Howe

WELCHES—Mrs. Cecil Skaer was hostess for a surprise birthday party for Mrs. Nell Bistorious. The guests were Mrs. Dorrel Petrie, Mrs. Sheldon Ellwood, Mrs. J. W. Creighton, Mrs. Jack Greenwood, Mrs. Dominic Rufatto, Mrs. Ruben Meyers and Mrs. David Howe.

Guy Burig was called to Portland last week on business and while there had an opportunity to visit with many of his friends.

Sheldon Ellwood was pleasantly surprised on his birthday last week. Twenty-four of his friends did all they could to make the event a gay and festive occasion.

Snyder Sprotz, vice president of NBC radio station in San Francisco and John Elwood, vice president of NBC radio station in Hollywood were house guests of William Drips at his home at Welches.

Robert Mansfield and his son, Bob, enjoyed a trip to Seattle. Bob, who is a merchant marine, is just back from Yokohama. He expects to ship out again sometime this month.

Georgia has voted Democratic since 1860.

Barker's Bugle

Howdy Folks,

If a man put a hundred dollars in a savings bank 20 years ago it would amount to over $200 now, and he could buy almost as much for it now as he could have for the original hundred dollars at the time he began to save.

However, we don't mean to discourage anyone from saving. You should save a little each week—at least enough for bus fare and lunches.

Every now and then we think we are organized to make ends meet and then someone goes and moves the ends.

Now days, the successful man is the one who can earn more than his wife can spend.

When the government gets the budget balanced, the citizen has to budget the balance, which probably is one reason why you don't have to worry about meeting the high cost of living—it over-takes you.

Of course there is one way to help beat this thing. Be sure to get some of those pennies at our store this week that will buy a dollar's worth next week.
