CHOOSE A JOHN DEERE
NO. 5

If you're a hay grower who wants to make short work of haying... cut 25 to 35 acres per day... mow in heavy or down and tangled hay... and operate any place a tractor will go, you'll do well to choose the John Deere No. 5 tractor mower.

The No. 5 is a proved mower, through and through. It's simple, durable, easy-on or off. It has a strong, well-braced frame, enclosed drive gears which run in oil, safety spring release and slip clutch on the power shaft to protect the entire mower from breakage, and many other quality features you'll appreciate.

See it... operate it—and you'll agree—the No. 5 is truly a tractor mower—the best money can buy.

OUT FROM UNDER ...

By

Dick Revenaugh

My son is just learning to climb and that doesn't mean that he can only climb to the seats of chairs or shinny up apple trees. He's serious about it!

The first time I was aware that he was prone to vertical locomotion was one quiet evening when I was sitting in front of the fireplace pleasantly entranced in a book. The house was deathly still and suddenly the quietness itself rang a warning bell and I looked up.

There was my son, Mark, teetering back and forth on the mantle right over my head. I sat there horrified for a moment and he smiled sweetly at me and jumped. He landed right in the middle of my reading, knocked the wind out of me, knocked the legs from under the chair and he, me, the book and wreckage from the chair were spread all over the living room. He laughed with overwhelming glee and I hobbled away to calm my nerves.

He has a clever way of jumping off the back of the davenport and catching the drapes which swing him within reach of the chandelier which he'll grasp with hands and legs and cry until I move the table and a chair over to pull him down.

He climbs out of his crib in the morning, paddles across the floor and crawls up on the headboard of my bed. There he'll pause and make a cannonball dive to my middle and watch as I come up gasping. Then he'll smile sweetly and say, "How do you do, Father."

There is one habit he must get out of fast. He stands on top of the book case and waits until someone passes under him at which time he leaps on their shoulders, grabs their ears and gives a bloodcurdling cowboy yell.

He likes to climb hand-over-hand on the drapes. It's old stuff for him to climb up on the table and sit down on the shade of one of the lamps and make like a deer hunter waiting for his prey.

He can walk around the edge of the bathtub as if it were a board walk at the park. A fence serves as an obstacle course for him, and he gets a lot of pleasure from crawling on top of my Ford and bouncing up and down just to hear the sheet metal twang.

His grandmother, who is resigned, gets him to pick the clothes pins off the line and to dust the tops of the doorways. Of course when he finds out we are working him—he balks.

To teach him a lesson the other day I moved all the appliances away and left him stranded on top of the refrigerator. We fed him there, he took his afternoon nap there, and we changed his pants there.

Come night when I finally broke down and rescued him from his perch and set him on the floor, you know what he did?

He cried, tried to jump back up, and that failing, he kicked me in the shins, and marched off to bed.

Welches, Sandy Take Top Honors At Camporee Sat.

Over one hundred boy scouts from seven troops in the Gresham district participated in the annual camporee on the United States forest rangers' grounds at Zig Zag, Saturday and Sunday, May 27 and 28.

The boys arrived at the site Saturday morning to set up their camps. Tests were made Saturday on proficiency in camping, cooking, cleanliness and safety. Special tests were conducted for skill in flapjack flipping and first aid.

Skits and singing were staged Saturday night around the campfire. On Sunday morning religious services were conducted by the Reverend Thyra Funk, Chapel of the Hills. The girls choir sang.

All preparations for the camporee were worked out ahead of time by participating troops. Menus, tent space, and sanitary provisions were planned previously. About 50 parents and friends visited the camp on Sunday.

Troop 173, Welches, under leader Rueben Meyer and troop 248, Sandy, under leader Bob Kinney, both won top proficiency awards in all phases of camp life.

Other troops participating were troop 214 Rockwood, troop 336 Gresham, troop 283 Springdale and troops 272 and 275 Troutdale.
