SANDY CATCHALL

By Martin Clark

BELIEVE ME, this actually happened just as it's related—even if you do read it here. Few weeks back the lieutenant governor of Kiwanis was in Sandy to install the local officers. After some rather impressive preliminaries the L.G., a distinguished looking gracious gentleman, rose and said:

"Before I begin the installation of the officers for this year, I would like for all the past presidents of the Sandy Kiwanis Club to please stand."

A respectful silence fell on all assembled, anticipatory of the scraping of a number of chairs as the exes pushed themselves to their feet. But the silence continued as there was no scraping of chairs. Finally, after a slightly painfully protracted pause, one ex-president rose to his feet.

"Are you the only ex-president present tonight?" asked the L.G.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Well," said the obviously chagrined L.G., "I had a nice little speech I was going to make to all the ex-presidents, but since you're the only one here tonight I won't waste it on you."

And Dr. William Grashorn, who was Lieutenant Governor just prior to the present L.G., resumed his seat.

DON'T BELIEVE EVERYTHING you read in magazines or newspapers. I was reading in a magazine one of those columns wherein readers contribute little tidbits of knowledge (for two bucks a contribution) not supposed to be widely known.

This particular contributor said that people who leave their cars out all night can save themselves some work in the mornings when it comes to scraping the snow and ice off the windshield, if they will tuck sheets of newspaper under the windshield wipers the night before. Then the next morning all you have to do is raise the wiper, slide the paper out, and Presto! the ice and snow come off on top of the paper.

It sounded logical to me. Always willing to try anything once, especially if it smacks of a labor-saving device, one icy night a few weeks back I very painstakingly adjusted some of the very best past issues of The Sandy Post under my wipers.

The next morning I could hardly wait to dash gleefully out and jerk off the papers to see the nice clear windshield beneath. Thirty minutes later I was still jerking—if anyone happened to notice newspapers frozen to my windshield and rear window, I was not looking for new means of advertising The Sandy Post. I'm still looking for that magazine to find the name of the knucklehead who contributed that idea.

GET RICH QUICK: there's a fortune in it for the guy that figures out a speedy way to put on tire chains and galoshes. Let me know first and I'll help you.

FEW WEEKS BACK you may have noticed an ad in The Sandy Post advertising Fisher's flour. The ad was something about "Shrimp Boats A-Comin'" or something like that. In the ad was a recipe including, naturally, shrimp, and, naturally, Fisher's flour. The recipe called for a 14 oz. tin of shrimp.

The day before we went to press an airmail special delivery letter arrived containing the cryptic note: "Change 14 oz. tin of shrimp in Fisher ad to 5 oz. tin." Yipes.

A big bouquet of rhododendrons to the Sandy high school student body for raising the magnificent sum of $343.25 for the March of Dimes. The Sunset and Sandy Theaters also cooperated 100%. A good campaign, C. C. Chase.

YOU NAME IT, and at one time or another in his life Percy Shelley was probably doing it. Percy has worked at just about every job there is at one time or another.

A generation or so ago he was a justice of the peace up at Brightwood. In that capacity Percy was called upon to do a variety of officiating including weddings, and occasionally, funerals.

On one memorable occasion Percy was doing the honors at a wedding. When he came to the concluding line Percy, who is inclined to daydream at times like most of us, said: "I now pronounce you man and wife . . . and may God have mercy on your souls."

At least that's the way Percy told it to me.

Sandy Is Jubilant Over Mt. Hood Loop ---
(This is the second of a series of five articles under the heading "Sandy Is Jubilant Over Mt. Hood Loop," happenings around Sandy in September, 1920.)

Meinig's grove was beautiful! Nature did her best, and Mrs. Esson and the rest did their best and altogether the effect was ideal. The original thought of a miniature highway, (yet big enough to walk on side by side!) was carried out by Mrs. Esson and Mary Junker who planned the idea. The other members of the committee did heroic work also. They were Mrs. Duke, Frances Meinig and Hazel Beers. And not only they worked but the whole town helped so many they can't be corralled on paper.

Paul Meinig was a host as head of the grounds committee, and also helped on almost all committees. The financial committee consisted of Casper Junker, Paul Meinig and Alice Scales and they all did excellent work. Reports are not in yet from finance committees of the vicinities. Casper Junker was splendid in his arrangement of the "big feed." There were over 130 feet of tables, one table was 75 feet long, and they were covered with delicious food, and everyone could pile up a plate and come again. Coffee and lemonade were also served free. Mrs. Junker worked very hard helping plan out the amount of food as well as roasting meat, baking buns, etc. It made us all so alive to hustle together as we did for the one big idea of success, and, we got it!

Gresham's donation of seventy-five dollars worth of food for our big lunch was princely and we are duly grateful. Gresham also furnished three good numbers for our program.

Judge Stapleton visioned ideals than "than me and my wife and our son John and his wife" in his fine address when he showed how inter-dependent we are upon each other as towns and communities.

All of our speakers were splendid and we should be proud to have them interested in our community to the extent that they will be glad to come again. Judge Stapleton got the joke
