University of Oregon Offers Scholarships In Journalism Field

The University of Oregon school of journalism announces a new scholarship program which will enable deserving and qualified high school seniors to study journalism in the university.

According to Gordon A. Sabine, dean of the journalism school, four students will receive $300 four-year scholarships next fall. These awards can be in addition to other scholarships the student may have received, Sabine stated.

A "talent search" is being conducted in the state by the school to find students who possess talent in either the field of news or advertising and who are interested in journalism as a career.

Candidates will be narrowed down to ten finalists, who will be interviewed by journalists in their respective cities. The winners will be chosen from this group, and the remaining finalists will be given special consideration for one of the work scholarship programs carried on by the journalism school.

ONE NEW TELEPHONE COSTS... $626.50

Yes, $626.50 is the amount of investment required to add each new telephone to our rapidly growing system! The instrument itself costs about $25, but this is only the beginning. There is a mountain of vital equipment behind your telephone, such as cable, wire, switchboards, buildings, and a great deal more. Without these, your phone would be a dead and useless object.

We are adding new telephones to our system at a rate of almost 10,000 a year. To make these new phones possible and to improve our service to all our subscribers, we have invested over 21 million dollars since January 1, 1946. This year we have budgeted over 6 million dollars more, and our task is by no means done.

It costs more than twice as much to add each new telephone today compared with costs at the end of World War II. Operating expenses have soared, too. Average wage rates of our employees have doubled since 1945, and our overall operating expenses per telephone have risen 50% in this same period.

Reluctantly, we have found it necessary to request modest increases in your telephone rates. Without these increases, it will be impossible to continue our improvement and expansion programs, designed to bring you the finest possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost.
