

SANDY PARTY LINE

By Pauline Morre
MU.7-4421

Graham Brotherton was the speaker at the Sandy Baptist chapel on Sunday, June 26th. He is graduate of the Multnomah school of the Bible since this spring. The regular pastor, Rev. Ray Stonehocker was in Emanuel hospital where he was recovering from an exploratory operation.

Several boys and girls from Sandy attended the three day camp in Portland at Mt. Tabor Park called Crater Camp. They earned enough points during Bible club this last school year to be able to attend. These are the younger children. The older age will attend a week of camp later. The boys' camp is July 25-31 and the girls is in August. Those who attended were: Judy Silvers, Mary Whitlock, Tommy Fussell, Kenny Minyard, and Paul Stonehocker.

The Christ's Ambassador's group of young people from the Assembly of God church had a time of picnic and fellowship at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Canfield near Bull Run on Friday evening. The food was a weiner roast and the fixings. Afterwards, a bagot service was held for the devotional time with, Rev. and Mrs. Turnbull in charge. Fifteen in attendance.

The annual Oregon Assembly of God Church has their camp at Brooks, Oregon which began on June 27th and ends on July 10. On Saturday morning the men had their breakfast in the Marion Hotel in Salem. This began at 7:30. Missionary emphasis was presented with the main speaker being Charles Greenway, one of America's outstanding missionary speakers. Several pastors were present who just returned from missionary trips. Among those present was Rev. N.D. Danielson the Oregon district officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Perret of Sandy attended the funeral of Carl Klige in Pendleton on a Friday recently. He was a nephew of Mr. Perret's and a former Sandy resident. The Perret's came home by way of several places of interest through the Blue Mountains, John Day, Mitchell, Madras, Prineville. They were home by Saturday evening.

Mrs. Ray Stonehocker of Sandy attended the wedding of a friend on Sunday. She went with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boettcher of Portland. Her daughter was a childhood friend of the bride, Miss Janet McArthur who married Ronald Shearer at the Glenwood Baptist church.

Mrs. Ault Moore returned home from Middletown, Pennsylvania where she flew to be with her mother Mrs. Celia Rudy during her recent illness. Mrs. Rudy's condition is improved and she is convalescing very nicely.

Mrs. Eleanor Howard visited with the W.W. Howard's of Sandy on Sunday. Her four children are staying with the grandparents while Eleanor attends summer school at the University of Oregon in Eugene. She is a high school teacher.

Mrs. Clara Hedden of Gresham visited with Mrs. Lydia Markwart on Tuesday. She is a former neighbor of Mrs. Markwarts when they both lived in Gresham.

Mrs. Clyde Kuether spent all day Sunday with Mrs. Ida Honey in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Errett Morre and family of Sandy visited with Mr. and Mrs. Esley Turner and family of Hillsboro on Sunday. No, the car isn't fixed, we bought another one. Used of course...

KELSO...

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Boggs were evening callers last week at the home of the Larry Parkers—Roy German and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Fertig and family spent the Fourth of July weekend fishing at Crane Prairie. Joyce Huntonn of Portland spent several days recently with Mrs. Rose Chandler and family. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cassidy and Loretta spent last weekend in Washington. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Joe De Field at Benton City, Mr. Maude Mitty at Spokane and Mr. and Mr. Gladden Fairman at Medical Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Warlick of Othello, Washington were recent dinner guests at the Henry Reckman home. The Warlicks are former Kelso residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Levan and family spent several weeks in June visiting relatives in Odebolt and Storm Lake, Iowa. Returning to Oregon they drove through Yellowstone Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Carol Jackson and family of Boring and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Levan and family spent the Fourth picnicking and fishing at Skookum Lake.

Spending the Fourth at Roslyn Lake were the John Chandler family, Rosa German, the Larry Parker family and Mrs. Violet German and family.

Mrs. Rose German and Mrs. John Chandler drove to Portland last week where they visited Mrs. Ellen Slanner. Also present were five aunts of Mrs. German—one coming from California and one from Washington.

OPINION

MYRTLE CREEK, ORE. MAIL: "Just what, in the long run, have we solved by our enormous and expensive farm subsidy program. You can still go broke, or get rich, in the farming business—just as in every other type of independent business—depending upon how hard you work, how shrewdly you operate, how timely you buy and sell, and how happily many elements over which you have little if any control contrive to deal with you. You can not expect to push a button on the anonymous machine that is government and expect it to provide suitable solutions for everybody".

Cinnabar Moth Eats Tansy OK

An Oregon State experiment designed to control the poisonous tansy ragwort weed looks like it's well on its way to success—thanks to nearly 1,000 cooperative cinnabar moths.

The moths were released this spring on patches of tansy ragwort in Linn and Polk counties by the OSC entomology department and local county extension agents.

The moths obliged by laying hundreds of eggs apace. The eggs now have turned into orange and black banded larvae which are hungrily eating tansy ragwort plants. "It's impossible to get an exact count of the larvae," Dr. Paul O. Ritcher said. But he saw at least 500 in a small area at the Linn county site, and is sure several thousand larvae must have emerged.

The cinnabar moth larvae is a natural enemy of tansy ragwort, but doesn't like any useful plants. Entomologists in Oregon, Washington and California hope to control the weed by taking advantage of this characteristic. The weed is poisonous to cattle and horses, and is a vigorous grower, crowding out more desirable plants.

Ritcher and Robert W. Evers, extension entomologist, emphasize that Oregon's success won't be clear until the moths have overwintered in the state, but the many larvae that have emerged are a good sign.

A similar experiment started in California last year appears to be a success. Larvae produced last year overwintered satisfactorily, and moths emerging this spring have reproduced, thus making more larvae to feed on the weed.

Oregon's original supply of cinnabar moths was furnished by J.K. Holloway, leader of parasite introduction investigation for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's laboratory in Albany, Calif. The moth is a native of France.

Sandy Locals

Miss Sharon Gunderson, bride-elect of Gale Meier, was guest of honor at a bridal shower held in the annex of the Community Presbyterian church Wednesday evening, June 29. Hostesses were Miss Judy Gains, Mrs. Martha Williams and Mrs. Edna Gunderson. About 40 guests enjoyed refreshments of ice cream, cake and punch and shared the joy of the guest of honor as she opened her many lovely gifts.

Mrs. Alan Gunderson with young daughters, Debbie and Donna, left last week to spend a month's vacation in Coronado, California with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Conley. They plan to visit Disneyland and other points of interest on the trip.

Miss Michelle Springer, daughter of Mike and Millie Springer, Sandy, was seriously injured when she was thrown from her horse during the Molalla Buckaroo.

Mrs. Marjorie Spahr, director of the Vacation Church school for the Sandy Community Presbyterian church, announced that the school will be held August 15 through 19 from 9 a.m. till 11:45 at the church.

Officers and superintendents for the coming year for the Community Presbyterian church school were elected by unanimous ballot after the reading by the nominating committee. General superintendent will be Gilbert Oldenkamp; treasurer, Mrs. Ivan Barker; secretary, Mrs. Ruth Dorman. Nursery superintendent is Mrs. Al Lamke. Primary superintendent is Mrs. Hartshorn; juniors, Jack Schafer; seventh and eighth graders, Mrs. Gehrts; high school Reverend Don Livesay. Nominating committee members were Mrs. Donna Veddar, Mrs. Carolyn Frasier, Jack Schafer and Rev. Livesay.
