Did you miss my column last week? It wasn't that I was too lazy to write it, but had had a telephone call from some lady I didn't even know, bawling me out because I hadn't put something in the paper, and I didn't even know what she was talking about. But even so I am off my mad now, so here goes for what it is worth.

Sandy Community Calendar birthdays for this week are as follows: Monday, May 13, Margaret Boothby, Beverly Buswell and Ronald Aldrich; Tuesday, May 14, Doug Rowell and Lucille Wienecke; Wednesday, May 15, Lloyd Holt, Raymond Peterson. Wedding anniversaries are for Mr. and Mrs. Phil Jonsrud and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Townsend, Sr. Thursday, May 16, birthdays are for Elmer Eri, Dick McQuaw and Alan McQuaw. Wedding congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. George McQuaw. Friday, May 17, Donald Eri has a birthday and Saturday, May 18, Rev. and Mrs. Ed Neuenfeldt have an anniversary. Birthdays are for Larry Ulmen, Marie Motejl, Larry Perkins, Cynthia Smith and Lucille Ogdon. Sunday, May 19, birthdays are for Dorothy Cassidy, Edna Peterson, Garnet McCulloch, Mason Craig and Joanna Freeman.

Club listings for the following week are: Thursday, May 16, Kiwanis; Monday, May 20, PNG Club; Tuesday, May 21, Chamber of Commerce and Sandy grade school PTA; Wednesday, May 22, Presbyterian Ladies Club.

Kay and John Wed

I attended the lovely wedding of Kay and John Metzger last Saturday morning at the First Christian church in Portland. Congratulations to both of them and much happiness.

Art and I attended the Ice Follies in Portland last Tuesday; they were about the best ones that I have ever attended. Although a few of the skaters fell down, the performance was very good.

Since Dorothy Gray had never bowled in her life, we decided to take her bowling Saturday night. She did very well for a beginner. Dean, her husband, skunked us one line, but I got even with them all on the last game. I beat them all but only with about 8 pins to spare. Dorothy will probably get the bowling bug now. We had a lovely time, anyway, down at the 20th Century Lanes on 92nd and Powell.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Reed on the arrival of their first baby girl. The little girl joins four brothers. Bob has the Richfield Service Station at Kelso, and if you buy your gas down there you can get free tickets on a 1955 Ford Station Wagon he will be giving away this summer.

BIDS OPENED

Bids have been opened for the improvement of a section of SE Claybourne St. between 128th Ave. and 134th Ave. The Multnomah County commissioners will receive bids in the Portland courthouse until 10 a.m. May 23. Work involves grading, placing rock base, construction of drainage facilities, concrete curbs, walks and driveways and surfacing with asphaltic concrete.

Swim Season Alerts To Water Safety Need

With the summer swimming season nearly here, YMCA aquatic experts again emphasize the best way to be safe in the water is to know how to swim.

"But even then the possibility of finding yourself or someone else in trouble in the water always is present," Dallas Swogger, executive secretary said today as the Clackamas County Branch Y launched its sign-up for the summer Water Safety Learn to Swim Program. (Classes start June 17.)

"And that's why it's important everyone, including youngsters, should know what to do in such an emergency," he continued.

If you should find yourself in danger, Mr. Swogger pointed out, keep calm. Don't lose your head and begin to thrash wildly.

"Look for something to cling to," he added. "Even a small object will help. And don't forget, your body has natural buoyancy and will float if you give it a chance."

Should you see another swimmer in distress, Mr. Swogger observed, immediately call for help. Then try to reach the person with anything at hand—a pole, tree branch, rope, or piece of clothing. If these measures fail, he added, find something to throw to the person that will hold him up, or reach him by boat.

"Unless you're a strong swimmer and skilled in lifesaving," Mr. Swogger cautioned, "don't attempt to rescue the person by swimming to him. You may only make things worse and have to be rescued yourself."

If it is necessary to apply emergency artificial respiration, Mr. Swogger said, the YMCA recommends the mouth-to-mouth method be used.

"It's simple, direct and effective. Even a child can learn quickly," he said. Here are the steps outlined by the YMCA:

1) Place person on his back. Turn head to side, force open mouth, and wipe clean with fingers or cloth.

2) Working from victim's right side, straighten and lift head by tilting backward. Then place your right hand on his chin, open mouth and insert thumb over his lower teeth.

3) Next, pinch the victim's nostrils with your thumb and forefinger of your left hand.

4) Take a deep breath and with open lips, place your mouth tightly over the victim's mouth.

5) Now forcefully blow air into the person until his chest rises. Then pull away and release.

6) Repeat every five seconds for adults, slightly faster for small children.

Another effective method, Mr. Swogger said, is the prone pressure technique. Steps to follow are:

1) Lay person face down. Place his hands under his cheek and kneel on one knee, facing his head.

2) Next, place your hands

flat on the victim's shoulder blades, rock and shift your weight forward by raising your hips, and press down firmly.

3) Now slide back, lift and pull victim's elbows up to ease pressure on his chest.

4) Then lower his arms to the ground and place your hands in the position to start again.

5) Repeat cycle 12 times a minute.

"Swimming," concluded Mr. Swogger, "is a great sport and can give many hours of healthful pleasure. Make sure you and your children get the most out of it. Learn to swim well and then use common sense in the water."
