INDIAN PAINT BRUSH: This brightly colored flower is perhaps the best known of all Alpine flowers. It grows everywhere in the high Cascades of Oregon and Washington and blooms throughout the summer months.

FAN LEAF CINQUEFOIL: A common yellow flower of moist shaded spots of the Hudsonian Zone, blooming throughout the summer. It is often called an Alpine Buttercup.

Nell's Notes

By NELL HOWE
Hood-Land Reporter

Received a letter from some people who lost their dog three weeks ago at the dedication of the new campgrounds. They said it was above Zig Zag. I think they meant the one up Lolo Pass road. The dog is a female, part Labrador, black with a little bit of white on her chest and on each front foot. Her name is Susy. At the time Susy didn't have her collar and license on.

They have made several trips up to the mountain looking for her, and have stopped at the summer homes and places of business. Someone saw her on the highway two weeks ago. They will gladly pay a ten dollar reward for her return. If anyone has any information about Susy, call Mr. Riley or call me. The owner's name is Delmar Stevens at PR 1-6473 in Portland.

Somehow losing a pet is just about like losing a member of the family. And usually they are the best behaved members of the family.

Congratulations to Merle Hill on his hole-in-one last week. Someone told on him or I wouldn't have found it out.

Lions Buy Flags

Also a big hurrah and congratulations to the Mt. Hood Lions club. They have purchased a large number of American flags and on all holidays will see that they are properly placed all up and down the highway. I have been wondering if it makes any large difference if one displays a flag with only 48 stars on it.

I have a huge one, but always feel guilty about displaying it. Of course if other people one like me, they don't stop and count the stars anyway. Makes one feel that they are way behind the times, or else have been slow in joining the union.

Jerry McAndie is visiting on the mountain for a couple of days. Came up to pick up her daughter, Karen, who had been visiting with Leanne Kasch for a week. Wonderful to see her, but wish it had been for a longer time.

There must be an awful lot of you gals who bowl on the mountain. There are several teams who need girls to complete their teams. If any of you are interested in bowling, either on the day league

Stake Taken For Horse Show

Peter-Paul MTRS-Volkswagon of Gladstone put up the $50 stake for the American saddle-bred five gaited saddle horse division, it was announced by Chet Roberson, show chairman.

All stake classes for the horse show at Canby, Aug. 23-25 have now been guaranteed and received by the association including Tennessee walking division, half Arab division, English Pleasure — all $50 stake classes — plus the $250 take in the Western Pleasure class.

This show will also include Texas barrel jackpot and pole bending jackpot events on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

Nichols Aids Metro Offense

Sandy's Dan Nichols didn't log a lot of playing time in the All-Star football game last Saturday in Portland but he still led Metro pass catchers. Nichols hauled in three late-game tosses from Barry Nordlof, Metro quarterback, to give some spark to the sputtering Metro offense. The State team rolled over the Metro forces, 27-0.

Rich Sheron of Oregon City and John Haveluck of Beaverton played most of the game for the Metro team at end.

Cross-Country Team Planned

Sandy high will have a cross-country team for the first time this fall.

The Pioneers will enter Willco league competition. Jim Ailes, science teacher at Sandy high, will be the coach.
