OREGON STATE GAME COMMISSION NEWS

BY MILT GUYMON

There will be some new angling hot spots opening up this week end for trout anglers. May 23 marks the date when all lakes in the high Cascades will become available to anglers, plus streams in Zone 1 from St. Helens on the Columbia south to the California line.

We advise anglers to check on road conditions as well as trails into the mountain country for, undoubtedly, many of these will still remain closed. Our latest report indicates the snow level in the Cascades begins at about the 3,000-foot level and gets progressively deeper with increased elevations. Also, most of the back country lakes at high elevations will probably be frozen over, if anglers can buck the snow to even get there -- the result of one of the latest springs in a long time.

Popular areas opening for anglers include East and Paulina lakes in the Paulina mountains; Diamond lake in the Umpqua headwaters; all lakes in the Deschutes basin such as North and South Twin, Big Lava, Sparks, and Elk; Timothy lake at the head of the Clackamas; and Clear lake to the east of Mt. Hood.

Anglers are advised that so far only one-way traffic is plowed to East and Paulina lakes and that camping is limited, with most campgrounds still blocked by snow. Snowplows had to buck nine-foot drifts to get into this area, Davis lake is free of ice, and the east campground near the lava beds is open. Elk, Sparks and Todd lakes were iced over at mid-May, and it is doubtful they will thaw or the roads will be plowed by the opening date.

Few, if any, of the popular lake basins will be available, except by long hikes over the snow. The Olallie lake road will undoubtedly remain closed until late June, and the Irish and Taylor lakes road is seldom open at this early date.

Big game hunters are alerted to the public hearing scheduled for May 22 at the game commission's Portland headquarters at 1634 S.W. Alder at which time the commission will hear proposals for the 1964 big game hunting regulations. The hearing will begin at 10 a.m. Following an interval of two weeks, a second meeting will be held on June 5 at which time the commission will adopt final regulations.

Big game hunters, sportsmen's clubs, individuals, and other groups and agencies who wish to submit proposals are urged to do so in writing so the commission will have a copy for consideration. Oral presentations will also be heard and given equal consideration in the proceedings to written suggestions. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Jaycettes Attend Convention

The women will hold their monthly luncheon next Wednesday, May 27, at the Top of the Cosmo restaurant in Portland. Anyone wishing transportation please meet at Mrs. Robert Innis's home--405 Hood St. at 11 a.m.

Timber Harvest Up In Past Year

Oregon's timber harvest during 1963 continued its upward trend of the previous year to reach well over eight and one-half billion board feet, according to log production figures just released by State Forester Dwight L. Phipps. This is the largest harvest in the last seven years, with the exception of 1959 which topped this past year's figure by some 183 million. The production level is also greater than all years prior to 1951.

Of the 8,681,829,000 board feet harvested this past year, some 3,783,274,000 board feet or nearly 44 per cent was logged from Private lands; 3,247,300,000 board feet or about 37 per cent from National Forests; 1,365,528,000 board feet or almost 16 per cent from Bureau of Land Management forests; 214,556,000 board feet from State managed forest lands and 71,071,000 board feet from Indian lands. Volume harvested from all government-managed forest lands increased by nearly 500,000,000 over 1962, while a decrease of about 316,000,000 was reported from private land ownership.

This was primarily attributed to the timber industry's logging efforts on all ownerships being concentrated on removal of the extensive blowdown resulting from the Columbus Day storm.

Almost 90 per cent of all disease germs which cause infection enter the body by way of the hands.
