

BPW Views Hair Stylings by Local Stylist

The Sandy Business & Professional Women's Club held a dinner meeting on Jan. 6 at Ning's Fireside Cafe.

Three girls from Sandy high school were honored. They were Kathy Knoll, the November Girl of the Month who was chosen for her sense of humor; Roberta Matheson, the December girl, who was chosen for neatness; and Cheryl Hames, January girl who was chosen for her versatility.

Mrs. Howard Berger, Personal Development Chairman, introduced Phyllis Rader, local beautician, and owner of the Curl Shop, who gave interesting demonstrations of hair styling and an informative talk on the care of hair and skin.

A short business meeting was held. The club decided to donate funds to the Sandy-Hood-Land Disaster Relief Fund for use of disaster victims of the area.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Berger on Wednesday, Jan. 20.

SANDY PIONEERS TO HOLD POTLUCK

A potluck dinner meeting has been scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 31, by the Sandy Pioneer Association. It will be at the Masonic Hall.

During the meeting an election for one new director to the board will be held.

At the potluck coffee, sugar and cream will be furnished by the association.

The history of burgundy wines can be traced back to 100 A.D.

Boots and Saddles sounded at 0800 hours Wednesday for the PGE "cavalry" which mounted and headed off for an assault on meter boxes across the Muddy fork of the Sandy river at Truman road.

At left is Bob New, PGE meter reader of nine years, but just about to embark for the first time as a horse-mounted reader. Fortunately for Bob, owner of the horse, Joie Smith of Rhododendron, has used more comfortable western style saddles rather than the GI type used by the "old" cavalry.

New said he had some 200 meters to check across the river, and had no idea how many remained—houses or meters. Joie said her horses had been used earlier by PGE to string lines where tracked vehicles couldn't go. Wednesday she had three rented to PGE of the 15 she owns.

She was going along as guide and general manager of horses. Probably New will hope one of the saddle bags holds a big soft pillow.

Receiving well wishes is Kay Randell of Rhododendron from Bill Reasoner, national sales manager of Scott & Fetzer Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, during a Kirby vacuum cleaner sales banquet held at the Multnomah Hotel in Portland last Saturday night. Kay was the company's guest of honor at the banquet in which they presented her with a new Kirby and wardrobe gift certificate. (See story) aware of the publicity value. After all, what company could ask for more, than to have their product depicted as the "one thing of value a woman chose to save" — and with the circulation that Life has - Wow! Anyway, Kay picked up the part and was out the door, with bill in hand, before Perry Long caught up with her. He was on the phone when she came in and was unaware at the time that she had been given a bill. This was the subject of much joking later on. (For what Kay ended up with, read story on page one.)

Kay, as did Post editor Crouse. Nolan took the picture that Life used. (An interesting footnote appeared in the Doug Baker column about this - Life sent the word out that they wanted colored coverage of the flood and would pay $2,000.00 for same. Rick Nolan was one of the few photographers with colored film in his camera.)

Blood donors are needed to replace blood used by former Hood-Lander Doris Huddleson. (See "Nells Notes" for more details.)

Volunteer workers from Sandy and Hood-Land spent last Sun. "ditching" the Wildcat Creek area for a water system. The Red Cross furnished $800 worth of plastic pipe for the job. A back-hoe was rented and paid for out of the Sandy-Hood-Land Disaster Fund.

Members of the Hoodland Womens' Club spent days working on the home of Florence and Jack Jancan. Members of the Mt. Hood Lions Club worked at the Roger Fraser home.

The Fraser home is cut off to anyone not having a 4-wheel drive vehicle. The Farm Tractor Co. of Gresham has provided the Frasers with a Jeep, free of charge, throughout this emergency situation.

"It never rains - but it pours" is an old adage that applies to Ruth Lee Anderson. After losing her home in the flood - she ended up in the hospital for an emergency appendectomy last week.

Paul and Lois Rice moved into their new home at Sleepy Hollow. Isn't it nice to hear of Hood - Landers moving in, instead of out, for a change! Joe and Jane Hillend will celebrate their 32 wedding anniversary by attending the Mt. Hood Lions "progressive party" tomorrow night, with Hood-Land friends.

Typical view to sightseers and others in the area of Rhododendron is this picture taken recently along the ZigZag River. Since the flood the river channel is continuing to slowly eat away from the bank while the home, right foreground, keeps drawing close to a watery grave.

Shortly after this picture was taken the home split down the middle and into two separate sections. It is located to the right of the ZigZag River bridge. Noticeable in the photo are two separate channels of the river, whereas only one channel existed prior to the recent flood.

Merle Hill went bowling at the Eastmont Lanes in Gresham and ended up with a new pair of shoes. The "other guy" can contact Merle at Hood-Land 211 if he wants to switch. Merle doesn't care one way or the other; as he ended up with shoes in better condition than his own!

If you tried to go anywhere last week-end - you didn't need to read it in the papers (front page Mon. Oregonian) to know we had "record making" traffic on the mountain. Sight-seers were all over the place, in droves. (Too bad someone didn't think to set up a toll station and charge 25¢ per head - it would have made a nice bulge in our Emergency Relief Fund.)

It was surprising to note the number of people that were unable to read. No Trespassing and Private Property signs didn't mean a thing. Before next week-end, I'm gonna add on to my signs - "Mad Dog - Enter at your own risk!" Then I'm gonna hide my dogs, as Toy Poodles don't look very fierce.

Everyone is breathing a big sigh of relief, now that the corp of Army Engineers have settled on the mountain, ready to go to work on the Sandy River and its' tributaries. Work will start at Sleepy Hollow area as the county owns most of the property there and will make permits available immediately. All other areas will require the permission of property owners and this might take a little time.

The Hood-Land area project was allowed $200,000.00 to start, from the Presidents Emergency Disaster Fund, under Public Law 875.

Many thanks to Clackamas County Director of Civil Defense, Hy Jackson, for his interest and help in this matter.

More good news came from County Road Master, John McIntre, who assured us that the Brightwood Bridge would be rebuilt as soon as the Sandy River channel is re-established.

Don't forget to buy a ticket $7.90 per couple or $3.95 per person (or make a reservation if you plan to get your ticket at the door) for the big get-together tomorrow night!

Cottrell GRADE SCHOOL NEWS

Last Friday, Jan. 15, we had our second volleyball and basketball games this year. We lost both games to Boring. The scores were: Volleyball--39 to 21 and Basketball--35 to 16.

This Friday, Jan. 22, we have a game with Bull Run in our gym. Our yell leaders are: Yell Queen -- Sharon Naylor, Danna Stockam, Rosanne Hudson, and Veronica Donegan.

The eighth grade hope to have another paper out soon. So far, we have had only issue in October.

Next Wednesday, Jan. 27 will be the second time we receive our report cards this year.
