Consolidation Plan Outlined

The people of the Damascus community met in a congenial, informative session on Tuesday night as guests of the Damascus PTA and discussed the proposed consolidation of the elementary school district with that of Clackamas.

The Tuesday meeting was the forerunner to an election which is scheduled for Feb. 17 in the Damascus district. Should the people of Damascus approve the proposal at the polls another voting date will be set for the residents of Clackamas to express their position on consolidation. Should Damascus defeat the issue on Feb. 17 the proposal would then be dropped.

Dave Young of the Damascus school board outlined several reasons why the board felt the consolidation should be effected and explained the board's position in approving the consolidation plan. The smallness of the district and its inability to provide many of the needed programs was among the reasons listed for consolidation. Many of the needed programs would be available in the larger district created by consolidation, Young said.

Young told the group the Damascus district is now free of any bond indebtedness and is in good financial condition, and therefore is in a better position now to be accepted into another district.

'Inspect Your Home' Project to Be Handled by Local Firemen

A home inspection project in the residential sections of the city were discussed and the decision to carry through on such a program was decided by members of the Sandy Volunteer Fire Department at their last meeting.

"We all hate the word FIRE and by having your home inspected we hope it will not be one of our annual casualty lists," remarked GIB Oldenkamp, chairman of the local volunteer fire department's public relations committee.

Questions like "Are your chimneys clean and safe?" and "Are your fuses the right size?" would be among those asked of local residents when members of the fire dept. make their calls. Among other questions that the firemen will be asking are "Are your oil tanks in metal containers?" or "Has your clothes dryer been cleaned lately?" and "In general are you living in a safe home?"

Members of the local dept. will be divided into pairs and given a certain area of the city to cover. When they knock at your door they will ask if you wish to have your home inspected for your safety and for the firemen's acquaintance with the floor plan, etc. of your home in case a fire ever happens or a rescue made during such an event.
