Karla Stewart was getting used to Fairbanks and not missing Oregon too much until she read about the strawberry jam --now she wants to come home. Strawberries are 59¢ a cup in Alaska. Karla is hostess at a Fairbanks Hotel and meets many interesting people. Here is one of her recent experiences: "I was talking to a man one day about where we were from, etc. and he said he was from Cozy, Wyo. I said 'I'd been there' and he asked if I had gone through the museum. I said I had, and he told me he was the Curator. I complimented him on their fine collection of Charles Russell's. I explained we were great fans of Russell, and had the book on him. Turns out this man wrote our big book!" Karla and a friend went on an old stern-wheeler down the Chena River, stopping at an Indian Camp which "was very interesting."
