Impact of Community Colleges

Oregon's community college program, relatively speaking, is still in its infancy. But make no mistake, it's leaving its mark.

Enrollment at the state's 11 community colleges is 45 per cent more than last year; about 25 per cent more were expected. Total enrollment is 13,563.

By contrast, what has happened at the state's schools of higher education?

The University of Oregon expected 13,000 students. It was extremely lucky to reach 12,000.

Portland State had 9,125 students last year and won't reach more than 8,500 this time. And so on.

The state's nine colleges and universities expected a 4,000 increase overall. They're far from that mark and at last reports, will barely equal last year's total.

There are lots of reasons for the less-than-expected increase... the draft, a slight decline in the birth rate, the availability of jobs etc. But the community colleges obviously are draining off just lots and lots of students.

In California, for instance, 80 per cent of high school graduates who attend college, start out at a community college. In Washington, the figure is 50 per cent. Oregon's program, of course, is brand new but the impact is obvious. And it's going to get a lot more so.

What this means, of course, is that the taxpayers won't have to pungle up quite so much for the senior colleges. This is just another of the reasons why the Outlook has for so long been so strong for community colleges.

Chips and Whittles

Some weeks you just can't win! Last week's Post looked like a winner for a few hours until a look at the sports page brought us up short. The picture of Jim Sliger was unrecognizable and with the realization an unscreened print of football player Jim Sliger had found its way onto the page. He was unrecognizable - even to his mother who could not believe it was of her son. To prove it was, we're running the same picture in this week's paper...and if Jim continues to make those touchdowns each week you'll be seeing him again and again.

We also learned to our dismay that the bowling girls bake sale was to be on Friday and not on Saturday as our news item had it. Hope that it was a success. That wasn't really our fault as we had been misinformed as to the date.

Later on, to our further dismay, Garlan McCulloch of the Clackamas County Bank, who was pictured on page one turning over some sod in ground breaking ceremonies for the bank's new branch at Wemme, told us that he had demoted him. Seems that he was reported to be assistant cashier of the bank, when, in fact, he is the assistant vice president.

Fortunately most people are very understanding about our occasional (?) errors and forgive us with good-natured grace. Do you have trouble weeding your front lawn or landscaping your lot? How'd you like to have to keep thousands of acres of trees, streams, meadows and lakes trimmed and groomed to perfection and have the additional chore of miles of roads open and passable the year around, to keep countless picnic areas cleaned up after use by the thoughtless, littering public, to plan woodland weeding and logging operations so that the forest improves but always with the beauty of the public view in mind???

It sounds almost impossible doesn't it? Yet that is just a small part of what District Ranger Pete Wingle and his men do every day of the year. Ranger Wingle was kind enough last week to take me on a tour of a part of the Zig Zag Ranger District. I was amazed with his knowledge and concern for every detail of the vast area under his supervision. He seemed to be as familiar with every nook and cranny of his huge domain as I am with my living room and keeps it a darn sight neater.

I learned so much on my afternoon tour with Pete it will take me days to sort it out. He was a veritable encyclopedia of information and told me so much about so many things that I'm not sure where to start sorting. One thing that keeps popping to the surface is how Muldor got his name. It was derived from MULTomah, ORegon and PORTland. A not very popular name among Clackamas County residents -- where after all the mountain is situated. E.H.

Mayor Dowsett, Ross Fanning To Run Again

Gresham will elect three councilmen and a mayor in the Nov. 8 general election and all four incumbents will be seeking a return to the seats they now hold in city government. Mayor Stafford Dowsett said this week he has decided to seek re-election and R. L. Fanning, previously undecided, announced that he too would seek another term.

Jan. 1, 1967, and the mayor is elected for two years. A nominating caucus will be held Monday, Oct. 10, at 8 p.m. at City Hall. Candidates may also be nominated at a later date by petition.

Local Bank Offers Cards

Through cooperation with U. S. National Bank of Oregon the Clackamas County Bank is making available the U. S. Bank-American in the Sandy-Hoodland area, according to H. W. Berger, executive vice president of the Sandy bank.

In making the announcement Berger said that the all-purpose credit card, first of its type in the state and a success for over eight years in California, will be in operation this fall. Currently member agreements are being offered to businessmen in the area.

Following this initial sign-up of businessmen, the card will be made available to individuals, and these individuals need not be customers of the Clackamas County Bank or U. S. National Bank of Oregon.

Under the member agreement, a merchant assumes no credit risk, thus freeing the businessman's capital and not tying it up in accounts receivable. At the end of each day, the businessman deposits his sales slips at his bank and receives immediate credit in his account.

At the end of the month, instead of receiving a bill from each firm where merchandise was purchased, the customer receives one bill. The customer then pays only the total of his sales tickets or may stretch his payments over a period of time with a nominal service charge.

Sandy Post,

If for some reason you are unable to print these (Hoodland Hoppers Bowling Scores) each week in the Sandy Post, would you please let me know so that I do not bother you by sending them in every week.

Sandy Post
 Hello Folks:
 Surely enjoy the home town paper. So many pictures, too, of people I know. But imagine my surprise some time back to pick up a paper (Sandy Post) and find a picture taken over 40 years ago in our backyard at the old Sandy Lbr. Co. of my folks' old Model T, our out-house and I think my sister, or else me, in it.
 Lillian TenEyck's honeymoon story was interesting to me too. She was my third grade teacher until she had to quit to have one of her baby boys. It would be interesting to have Mrs. Ten Eyck or someone write about the old resort town of Marmot when it was a bustling place with hotel, post office, etc.

Mrs. Ed Buswell

 Thanks for the nice letter. Maybe Mrs. Ten Eyck will take the hint. By the way, just where did you say you were in that picture? ed
