A mother received her son's monthly bills from college and was discussed them with her husband. "Look, dear," she said, "it's the languages that cost most. Scotch, $50," -- Coast Guard Magazine.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK
By KEN BATEMAN
In a group discussion not too long ago, it was asked why people curse in conversation. It was noted with amazement that some cursers are successful, brilliant men, capable of good speech. Cursing is a habit one acquires to add impact to words. Those who use language with profanity do it because they fear normal expression lacks strength to put a point across. There is no question that the cursing habit can be broken. One man in the group told an interesting story. He related how, years ago, his three-year-old boy stumbled and stubbed his toe. The child let out with an explosive barrage of cursing which shocked his mother and died before they could say anything. The child stily sensed their shock. In the quick of a wink, he changed from sinner to saint and started to sing, "Jesus loves me, this I know for the Bible tells me so." The fellow told how he and his wife, while shocked, had to inwardly chuckle over the surprisingly quick transition of the little rascal. Since habits are mostly formed by association or example, especially with impressionable youngsters, both parents decided then and there to never use even mild profanity ever again.

The son is now a grown man. He is a fine person and an interesting conversationalist. His parents are now too. BATEMAN FUNERAL CHAPEL, 520 W. Powell Blvd., Gresham.
