Nell's Notes

By NELL HOWE
Hood-Land Reporter

We left Wednesday morning for Expo '67 in Montreal, arrived in Vancouver, B.C. around 3:30, checked into the Motel and then off to see Stanley Park--what a place. The Park covers about 1000 acres and is partly surrounded by the waters of the English Bay and Burrard Inlet. It has all kinds of primitive foliage, huge trees, flower gardens and picnic grounds. There are recreational areas for tennis, bowling greens, archery, golf, cricket, outdoor checkers, riding and boating.

There is a beautiful zoo, bear pits, seals, whale, monkeys, all kinds of birds and other zoo creatures plus many monuments and places of interest such as beaches for swimming or just sunning and all for free. The only charge is if you wish to go inside in the aquarium, and it is nominal. We drove around the whole park then walked around the inner part. It was beautiful but people are people all over. There were trash cans about every ten feet and still they strewed their trash all over. Vancouver has a good collection of "hippies", the unwashed, uncombed, bearded, long haired types. One gal, I think it was a girl, stepped in front of our car and hollered "Yankee go home" at us. We fooled her, we didn't. Had a marvelous dinner at Leo's, picked it special because it was on Howe St. Also the court house is bordered on one side by Howe St. and there is a Howe Motor Hotel so we felt amply represented.

Up early and off again through the Fraser River Canyon to Salmon Arm. What a magnificent river, wicked looking but beautiful. Looked Kamloops over and decided to go on. We stayed at Salmon Arm in a beautiful motel among the hungriest mosquitoes I've ever run into.

We found a fascinating second hand store and antique shop in Salmon Arm. It's a good thing we didn't have much room or I would have brought home a Franklin Stove. It was a beauty. We settled for much smaller stuff. Left Salmon Arm Friday morning stopping to go through the "Wierd Woods", a cute bit. The kids love it; so do the mosquitoes.

We traveled through the Columbia Mountains, still lots of snow, even along the road. The scenery is magnificent, Rogers Pass, 4380 feet brought even more overwhelming scenery, such rivers and lakes and snow tunnels. The road is excellent and for a two lane highway it is extremely wide. The Canadian side of Glacier National Park is beautiful but not like the U.S. side. Yoho National Park is something to see. It makes our Crooked River Canyon look mighty shallow. When they say canyon here they mean it. We got to see the train go through the Spiral Tunnels. This cuts the grade down so they can make it up the hill.

We drove into Lake Louise and loved it. The Chateau Lake

Louise is immense and looks like one of the English Castles. The lake is a green that is too difficult to describe but really is something to see.

On to Banff. We didn't realize that it was such a large town crowded with people. No vacancies so up to the Rim Rock Motel above Banff. It was a lovely place even if we did freeze to death. There was no heat in our rooms and being at snow level the night air is cold. It seems that one should have a little heat when one pays that much for a room. So we sat around in our sweaters, quite a switch from the weather we left behind us.

Tomorrow we take the gondola to the top of one of the peaks which should be in the neighborhood of 10,000 feet because we are at over 5000 feet where we are staying now. For once we didn't bring the rain with us, well only about three drops. At least none of it hit the ground. The weather is around 70, wonderful. Hope this didn't bore you--it certainly hasn't bored us. Will try to get in touch with you all, next week.

Property tax relief, the number one mission of the 1967 Oregon Legislature, failed to materialize during the last session, according to Clackamas County Representative Roger Martin, speaking at the Sandy Kiwanis Club meeting last Thursday night, July 6. Three bills, he stated, including the three per cent sales tax, were passed by the House but were killed in the Senate.

Martin noted that the recent and widespread defeats of school budget elections and the circulation of the one per cent and the one and one-half per cent property tax limitation petitions indicate that a crisis is approaching in the area of property taxes.

The legislative session was productive in other areas even though the tax program was omitted noted Martin.

On the plus side, said Representative Martin, the legislature passed several effective measures to combat air, water and soil pollution. In water pollution, he explained, permits will be required of those dumping pollutants into state waterways. At times this will become harsh for certain companies as the permits become difficult to obtain, he noted, but something has to be done. And, air pollution measures passed will require farmers to obtain permits to burn their fields.

State employees were voted salary raises and a better pension program in order to bring those levels up to a level with those of the surrounding states and the federal government. Martin pointed out that the State of Oregon has an annual employee turnover of around 40 per cent.

In the field of conservation, Martin sponsored the bill making the cougar a game animal and successfully carried a bill on the House floor which raises the cost of hunting and fishing licenses in order to provide more revenue for the Oregon State Game Commission. Martin also succeeded in getting a bill tabled that would have allowed commercial fishing in the mouth of the Sandy River. The bill had previously been passed by the Senate.

Concerning traffic safety, Representative Martin said he would like to have seen more legislation passed in the areas of driver education and periodic reexamination of driver's licenses. A bill was passed, however, making it illegal, on a four lane highway, to use the inside lane except for passing.

Other areas in which Martin praised the legislation concerned the revision of the State Constitution, passage of the Beach Bill, appropriation of funds for the Oregon State University Sea Grant College and in the legislation allowing the state to give financial assistance to communities building sewage facilities.

Fairgrounds Is Site of 4-H Workshop, Stockmen's Picnic

A 4-H Leadership Workshop and the County Stockmen's picnic will be held this week end at the Clackamas County Fairgrounds in Canby. The picnic will begin at 1 p.m.

Leadership will be the theme of a 4-H leadership workshop to be held at the County Fairgrounds, Canby July 14-16.

Approximately 90 high school age 4-H members are expected to attend, according to Harold Black, County 4-H Extension Agent. Members will attend from Washington, Columbia, Multnomah and Clackamas Counties.

The program will include speakers, discussion groups and recreation activities. Glenn Klein, State Extension Agent, Oregon State University, will begin the Saturday morning program with a talk on "Roles People Play In Groups." Other speakers include Rev. John W. Brook, Portland; and Mrs. Jane Rohrbach, Beaverton, Secretary of the Oregon Extension Council. Mrs. Rohrbach will speak on "Leadership Is The Key."

Two representatives from each of the participating counties are serving on the planning committee for the workshop. Clackamas County is represented by Sandra Lundeen, Sandy, and Pete Wille, Shubel.

BPW to Promote Local Calendar

The Sandy Business and Professional Women's Club meeting at Mrs. Edward Schmitz home in June voted to sign up people for the Kiwanis Community Calendar this year and will do so at the Fly-In Breakfast this weekend.

Members also heard reports on the state convention in Salem. Those members attending were Mrs. John Bye, Mrs. Gladys Cannon, Miss Eula Lankard, Mrs. Lorraine Martin, Mrs. Louise Crutcher and Mrs. Edward Schmitz. Also at the state convention, Mrs. Florence Schmitz was named chairman of the Public Relations committee.

Newly elected BPW officers are Mrs. Arthur Colson, president; Mrs. Edward Schmitz, vice-president; Mrs. Walter Blaisdell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Marie Seematter, recording secretary; and Miss Eula Lankard, treasurer.

The next BPW meeting will be held July 19 at president Audry Colson's home.

Sandy Teacher Heads State BPW Position

Mrs. Florence Schmitz, Sandy, was appointed chairman of the public relations committee at the State Convention of the Business and Professional Women held in Salem in June.

Mrs. Schmitz was appointed to the position by Mrs. Gladys Myers, State BWP president. In her new position, Mrs. Schmitz will try to improve the relations between clubs, communities and the world.

In the past Mrs. Schmitz has been president of the Sandy BPW four times and presently is first vice president, she had been treasurer, corresponding secretary and recording secretary.

Mrs. Schmitz has taught the fifth grade at Sandy Elementary School for the past 22 years. In the past summers she has taught summer school and has spent one summer teaching migrant children at Sandy Ridge Grade School. Among her other teaching duties, Mrs. Schmitz has conducted Sunday School classes for the past 22 years.

Other positions she has held are president of the PTA, Director of the North Willamette BPA District and Citation of Merit Chairman. She presently is president of St. Michael's Altar Society.

When Mrs. Schmitz is not busy with her club activities she enjoys working with ceramics and also with her garden where her favorite flowers are lilacs and gladiolus.

Pam Jester Is Named as Outstanding Journalist

Pam Jester, a graduate of Sandy Union High School, is one of 249 high school seniors honored by the Oregon Scholastic Press for outstanding work in journalism.

The seniors were nominated by their schools in May to receive Eric W. Allen newspaper awards and George S. Turnbull yearbook awards from the press organization which is affiliated with the University of Oregon School of Journalism.

There were 57 more awards given this year than last year and 15 more schools participated.
