Youth Drowns In Reservoir

A 15-year-old youth, presumably James Lipscomb, son of Dr. and Mrs. Tom Lipscomb, Brightwood, drowned Wednesday morning in the Portland General Electric North Fork Reservoir.

A PGE spokesman said Clackamas County Sheriff's deputies were investigating. The reservoir is some six miles east of Estacada on the Clackamas River.

Further details were not known at press deadline.

Hoodland Club Lists Auction

The Hoodland Women's Club is preparing for its fourth annual auction to be held Sunday, June 16, at the Hoodland Park Building at ZigZag.

The building will be opened at 12 noon for viewing of items to be offered for sale. The auction will start at 2 p.m. with Ray Novotny as one of the auctioneers who will encourage bidders to buy and help swell the treasury of the Women's Club.

The Hoodland Park building, now nearing completion, has been a project of the Hoodland Women's Club for the last five years. The auction will be held both inside and outside the building.

A large and varied array of items have been donated for the sale, including TV's, furniture of all kinds, some antiques, books and plants. Many smaller articles will be on sale in the country store.

Another auction feature will be the drawing for the two winners of the Ski-Lift family passes for the 1968-69 ski season. These passes are for Timberline ski areas.

As a special treat for the kiddies (and near kiddies), rides on a real fire engine will be available during the afternoon.

Hot dogs, coffee, soft drinks and popcorn will also be available.

The Hoodland Park building is located at ZigZag on Salmon River Road - which is just off Highway 26 to the south - between the Barlow Trail Inn and ZigZag Inn.

Water District Formed

Formation of Mt. View water district was approved by voters with a slight margin June 5. The area in the district includes Cottrell and Kelso. Commissioners elected were: Lloyd Holt, Pete Hauglum, Roy Brooks, Henry Beckmann and Dale Edwards. Unofficial tally was 209-212.

One-Car Wreck Kills Area Woman

Ella Laverne Winchester, 64, 16901 SE Division, was killed instantly as a result of a one-car accident Monday morning about one mile north of Gresham on U.S. 26.

According to Multnomah County Sheriff's deputies reports, Mrs. Winchester's late model automobile was traveling north when it apparently went into a four-wheel skid. She was alone in the car.

The vehicle skidded 122 feet, left the roadway and struck a ditch. The auto was airborne during part of the skid, reports said.

Mrs. Winchester was thrown from the vehicle, and was dead by the time deputies reached the scene. Cause of the accident is allegedly attributed to the vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed, reports said.

CCC Selects President

Dr. Eugene F. Voris, 44, of Elko, Nev., will become President of Clackamas Community College on July 1. His appointment was approved by the college board of directors at their regular meeting June 5.

Currently president of Nevada Community College in Ontario, Oregon from 1962 to 1967.

He received his B.A., M.A., and Ed. D from Colorado State College, and began his career in education in Colorado in 1948.

While at Treasure Valley, Voris was co-founder of the Oregon Community College Association, serving as chairman of the president's section for three consecutive years.

He and his wife Alice have three children.

Oregon Doctor Will Offer AMA New Proposal

An Oregon physician, who has carried out extensive studies of health care economics, will bring a recommendation to the AMA when it meets next week, June 16-20, in San Francisco. Dr. Walter Noehren of Sandy will ask that the American Medical Association label its medical aid policy as a "Guaranteed Minimal Income for Health Care."

According to Dr. Noehren, the AMA's policy for several years has been to recommend subsidies be extended to the poor for their own purchase of health care. He said a special committee of the AMA Board of Trustees is expected to report at the meeting that the direct subsidy technique of supporting the poor is the best from all points of view, will prove the most effective, the most economical, and the best from the point of view of patient satisfaction.

Dr. Noehren, has received many endorsements from other U.S. physicians on his past and present work on the problems of health care and financing for the poor. He said he feels the phraseology of the label he suggests will best express the intent of the health care policy expected to be approved by delegates at the meeting.

Strawberry Crop Status Off-Again, On-Again

The on-again, off-again strawberry crop is at this writing in a state of confusion among those making predictions of crop yields may seem confusing to you and well they should, Jack Parsons, Clackamas County Extension Agent says, for the crystal ball by which crop estimates are made has been indeed hazy this year.

According to Parsons, trying to predict crop prospects or yields of fruits or vegetables is very risky. He says, this year's strawberry crop is a prime example of the confusion and differences of opinion that exist. The early frost damage to strawberries caused many to make predictions of practically a total loss in some varieties to at least 50 per cent in other varieties of strawberries. At the time, those making the predictions viewed the fields and the damage appeared to be, it was quickly evident that the early predictions were not accurate.

This period was followed by relatively good growing weather, the County Agent said but the dry weather was beginning to have its effect on some fields causing concern again to those observing the crop this spring. This period was then followed by heavy rains, in fact an extended period of rainy weather, favorable to disease development, which once again caused concern to those observing the crop this spring. This period was then followed by heavy rains, in fact an extended period of rainy weather, favorable to disease development, which once again caused concern to those making crop predictions for this year's strawberry crop.

The truth of the matter is that we are right now at the beginning of strawberry harvest and still in doubt about the actual outcome of this year's crop, Parsons reports. It points up the futility of attempting to predict yields of fruit and vegetable crops. We just don't know until the crop is delivered to the processor or to the fresh market outlet what the prospects will be, he said.

At this time with strawberry harvest just beginning, the crop could only be predicted by saying that "if" the weather is favorable during harvest period the yields could be good. This prediction includes a big "if" and it won't be until next week that the true yields from strawberry fields will be known.

Parsons gave another example of how quickly situations can change in this year's pickling cucumber acreage. A short week ago, he said, growers were content with the stand of plants in their fields. However, at this time most of the cucumber fields are being replanted due to damage from slugs, flea beetles, and damping-off.

Activities Many For Sandy RFPD

The June issue of the Oregon Fire Service Bulletin reports the activities of the Sandy Volunteer Fire Department (Fire District 72) are many and varied.

The bulletin noted that in addition to operating one of the busiest volunteer ambulance and first aid units in the county, especially during the ski season, they provide fire protection for a 62 square mile RFPD in Clackamas County.

The department, commanded by Chief Lyle Seaman, has developed 30 different water sources from the ponds, lakes and streams in the district. According to the report, all these locations are marked with 12 inch square luminous signs, with arrows pointing to the drafting site. In order to maintain familiarity and assure usability, companies frequently drill at the sites.

Damping-off is a fungus disease that attacks newly-germinated vegetable plants, causing them to die.

He revealed that the science of predicting crop yields of fruits and vegetables has again turned out not to be a science at all, but instead an art. Those predicting crop yields have obviously not learned this art and indeed probably never will. The agent pointed out that there are too many "ifs", too many unknowns, too many factors which cannot be controlled, for anyone to accurately predict yields of fruits or vegetables.

MHC Students Earn Degrees

Seventy-nine students were graduated Sunday from Mt. Hood Community College during first annual commencement exercises.

Dr. Earl Klapstein, MHCC president, addressed the students, charging them with the responsibility of leadership in an increasingly complex society.

The national day of mourning for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who was assassinated last week at Los Angeles while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, was recognized in the ceremony. U.S. Rep. Edith Green, who was scheduled to give the commencement address, cancelled because of the Kennedy death.

Fifty-nine students received associate degrees for completion of two-year programs, and 28 students received certificates for completion of one-year programs.

Degrees and certificates were conferred by Sedley Stuart, MHCC board chairman.

Some 550 persons attended the exercises.

Area Chamber Membership Up

Sandy Area Chamber of Commerce membership has reached a new high with 57 paid members, President Ned Dyal told the group Tuesday at their weekly luncheon meeting in T.J.'s Restaurant.

However, Dyal pointed out, membership in the organization is not enough in itself. He said, participation in the chamber's activities if the needed and necessary is the body is to perform its function properly.

Formation of the Christian Business Men's Prayer Breakfast Club was announced at the meeting. The group meets at 6:30 a.m. each Thursday in the Dew Drop Inn. An invitation was extended to all men in the area to attend the meetings.

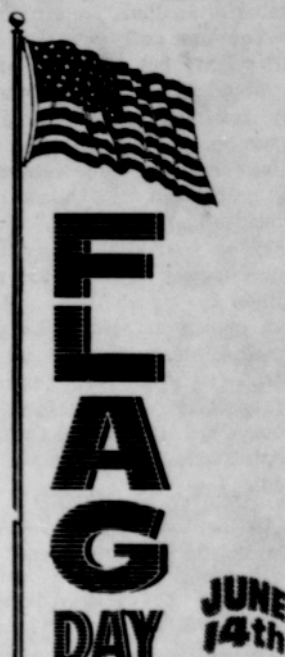

Telford Wins Republican Nod

Thomas D. Telford of Boring has received the Republican nomination for Clackamas County Commissioner, Position No. 3.

Telford, who garnered 12,256 votes in the primary election, will run against incumbent Commissioner Stan Skoko a Democrat, in the fall elections.

The Republican candidate, a consulting engineer, was opposed in the primary by Margaret Fields. Mrs. Fields received 5,215 votes.
