Legislation reaching floor for voting in House

Compiled by JIM HENDERSON
State Rep. Clackamas County

The Oregon House of Representatives has now been in session 75 days. A quick review of the action taken during this past week shows that the pace is quickening and that many significant pieces of legislation are now reaching the stage for final floor vote.

One massive piece of legislation which passed the House this week was the revision of the Oregon Public Utility Code. The new revision consolidates certain procedures relating to complaints, investigations, hearings and other administrative provisions. It also eliminated obsolete provisions in the old code and modified and modernized the language. The bill now goes to the Senate for Senate action.

The House also has passed and sent to the Senate a bill requiring a 30-minute free lunch period for all school district employees. Many school districts have required teachers to supervise in classes or on the playground during lunch time.

Property tax relief as proposed in the Home Preservation Plan which was announced earlier this season by Speaker of the House Robert F. Smith (R-Burns) and Senate Minority Leader Victor Atiyeh (R-Beaverton) has cleared the House Revenue Committee. Two parts of the Republicans four point property tax relief program have passed the Oregon House Revenue Committee this week. The measure to exempt the first $1,500 in value of a home from taxes and a cigarette tax increase to pay for the exemption were voted out of committee this past week. The tax exemption would mean an average of about $45 in tax relief to all individual home owners. The cigarette tax which will provide the money for the tax relief package is an increase of 5 cents a pack making a total of a 9 cent tax on each pack of cigarettes.

State Representative Sam Johnson (R-Redmond), Chairman of the House Revenue Committee, indicated Wednesday that the bills to help low income and elderly taxpayers will also receive favorable treatment.

The two remaining portions of the Home Preservation Plan would freeze the property taxes for Oregonians age 65 and older. The other feature would encourage home improvements by allowing a $500 annual income tax deduction from money spent on home improvements.

In the House Judiciary Committee this week a special subcommittee on consumer protection legislation was appointed by Committee Chairman Gordon Macpherson. The special subcommittee will be chaired by Representative Robert Stults of Roseburg. The purpose of the special subcommittee is to consider the various proposals which have been referred to the House Judiciary Committee in the fields of consumer protection and proposed legislation which will provide the maximum protection to the citizens of Oregon while creating minimum restrictions on Oregon's economic and retail community.

The subcommittee will have several proposals before it including restrictions on door-to-door sales, holder in due course defense, small loan company interest rates and deceptive trade practices.

In the Environmental Committee, discussion continues on House Bill 1065 which would create a nine-member Nuclear Thermal Energy Council to be appointed by the Governor with authority to approve sites for thermal power plants and associated power transmission lines. The highlights of this proposal includes five-year moratorium on construction of nuclear plants, a proposal which also includes veto power of the Governor and calls for five votes of the nine members for the approval of any siting. The proposal also suggests political rather than technical character of the Council's composition.

The Oregon Senate voted this week to halt agricultural field burning in the Willamette Valley by 1975. Senate Bill 38 which was sponsored by Senator Wingard (R-Eugene) will now go to the House for House action.

The Senate Environmental Affairs Chairman Don Willner (D-Portland) said that Senate Bill 38 removes the agricultural exemption covering field burning, continues the marginal day burning program now in effect during the phase out period, and assesses grass seed growers a 50 cents per acre charge for fields they burn with most of the $100,000 raised going towards research for an alternate method of controlling fungus and other problems.

The bill also establishes a five-member committee balanced between growers and the Dept. of Environmental Quality, to certify an alternate technological method of cleaning grass seed fields once it is available, and, last but not least, it establishes a January 1, 1975, cut-off date for the practice of field burning.

The Senate Human Resources Committee this week has approved a bill which could result in the fluoridation of water for 80 per cent of Oregon's population. The bill which would require fluoridation in cities of more than 4,000 population unless voters specifically vote against it passed out of committee 3 to 1. The measure if passed will go into effect January 1, 1973. Only 20 per cent of Oregon's people drink fluoridated water now. The bill would apply to water supply districts with more than 1,200 connections. The highly explosive fluoridation issue has been before the Legislature for many years but this is the first time any Legislative committee has voted for it.

Other major pieces of legislation are now reaching the near completion stage. One such bill is House Bill 1036 which is the bottle bill and action is expected in committee on this bill within the next few days.

H.B. 1791 and H.B. 1792 which are Clackamas County Representative Jim Henderson's low income property tax relief plan, was heard on Monday by the Revenue Committee. There was a lengthy discussion regarding renters' relief which these bills do not cover. The only way renters in the low income area might benefit would be through income tax exemption and this is being studied at the Senate side.

The Henderson plan calls for a vote of the people in establishing a 5 per cent hotel-motel bed tax to apply to a property tax relief for those people owning homes who net less than $5,000 net income yearly. The plan would be in addition to other property tax relief plans in existence. Comments from committee members was "it is the first plan submitted with ability to pay".

COTTRELL DOINGS

By Mrs. H. H. Watkins

Cotrell Ladies Aid will meet on April 7th at the home of Mrs. Harold Reynolds on Reynold Rd.

The bad windstorm of Friday caused the big red barn on the former Fred Radford place to go down in a heap. It was built over fifty years ago.

Orville Wortman is reported very ill in Gresham where he and his wife now live. They lived out here at Cottrell several years. They are relatives of Mrs. George Brisco.

Several school cafeteria cooks attended the State Food Conference in Astoria. Going there on Sunday and returning Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Fred Warner, head of Cottrell cooks, and Mrs. Marie Swartz of Sandy, and Mrs Arthur Hauglum and Elizabeth Lunsford, who is the supervisor of Orient cooks, all attended.

They report that the National Food Conference will be held for the first time in many years on the West Coast in Seattle in 1972.
