

Clackamas votes again on $1,595,220 budget New zone asked

Clackamas Community College's Board of Education slashed another $337,000 from its proposed operating levy for next year reducing the cost to local property tax payers to the same as the past year in an effort to gain local approval. The levy which now totals $1,595,220 will be submitted Thursday, Aug. 12.

Voters in the district have defeated three previous proposals which were presented to them in April, May and June. A local levy is absolutely necessary to operate the college next year, college officials say, and must be approved by voters since the college has no tax base.

In submitting the proposed reductions, Dr. John Hakanson, college president, said that the college has reached the point that passage of an operating levy for next year will require more grassroots support from the community.

People must decide that they want a community college and not be so apathetic," he said.

pointing to the small voter turnout in earlier spring elections.

"Citizens have been telling us taxes are too high," Hakanson said. "In submitting the proposed reductions, the college has worked hard to reduce the cost without doing permanent damage to the long range college program."

"The tax levy will not exceed the current rate of $1.47 per $1,000 true cash value," he adds. "Reductions have been made up of both cuts and increased income resulting from tuition increases, added state monies and other income factors."

More than $212,000 has been cut from personal services including salaries, position cuts and part time pay cuts.

Eliminated since the last election are proposed administrative positions, one instructor, a librarian, a counselor and six classified personnel. Teaching supplies have been reduced by 10 percent and the contingency fund was also reduced.

Tuition will be increased by $10 for a full time student and full time status has been changed from 12 credit hours to 10 credit hours.

Charges for adult education classes were raised from $5.50 to $7.00 per credit hour.

All athletic supplies, a total of $3,500, were deleted from the levy. The cuts will change the tax delinquency factor which will amount to another $109,000 being reduced from the levy.

The board will meet again Wednesday, July 14, and will invite the budget committee to review the budget changes. The general public has also been invited to attend the open meeting which will be devoted to talking about the budget.

Tapes taken

Stereo tapes and records valued at $775 were reported stolen June 30 from the home of Dexter W. Zinke, 2635 SE Morrison Ct., according to sheriff's reports.

Owners of the old fairgrounds in Gresham have petitioned for a zone change to permit expansion of the flea market on the property.

The Gresham Planning Commission will conduct a public hearing on the request Monday, July 12, at 8 p.m.

The flea market operators are renting a building next to the old exhibit hall and want to expand to that building. When zones were established on the fairgrounds property, the building now occupied by the

Tips for better lawns given

By WILBUR W. BURKHART
Area Extension Agent

If you want to start a new lawn, several choices must be made before you begin.

First is the way the lawn is to be started. The choices are for growing the grass from seed or sod. The sod is the way the lawn is to be started. The sod is the way the lawn is to be started.

perfect rectangular pieces of sod and grass. The sod removed in the process seldom exceeds one inch. All sod is cut fresh to order of the individual except for a few outlets that feature pre-cut sod available at all times.

The recommended procedure calls for using only the sod cut to order since the life of pre-cut sod is short and damage can result to the roots to such extent that the all advantage of using sod is lost.

place it on the top of the soil and use a thin (not more than 1/2 inch) layer of peatmoss or barkdust.

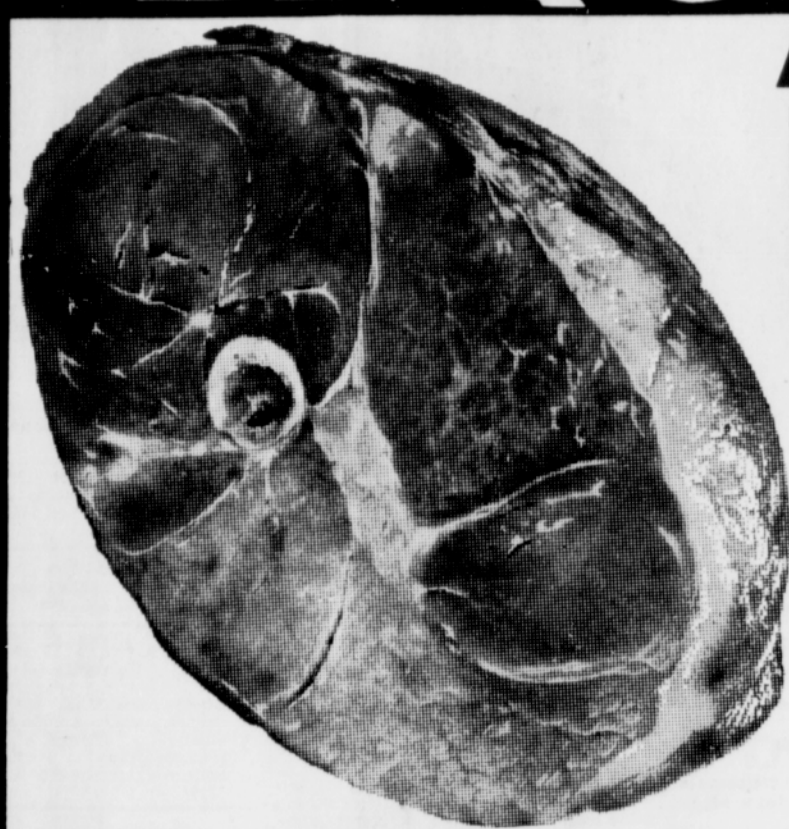

Begin watering a day keep the area uniformly moist without allowing the area to dry out at any time. If the area has weed seeds present near the surface, they will have an equal chance to compete with the grass since they will start to grow at the same time.

As compared to sod, weeds have a better chance since the sod is heavy and dense enough to discourage any weed plant from becoming rapidly established if it should even germinate and attempt to survive. Many seedlings may be weak and the time required to get them firmly established may be more than you wish to spend in getting the turf to the point where it may be enjoyed.

The main question comes often and involves the sharing of the secret as to how perfect lawns can be obtained. This means the lawn without a weed or foreign grass type. Sod used to establish the new lawn is of help but not a guarantee that the lawn will be without weeds. Seeding can lead to total failure because of such overwhelming numbers of weed seedlings in comparison to the grass trying to grow.
