Franchise renewed for PGE

Portland General Electric was granted a 20-year franchise last Thursday by the Gresham city council.

The rate was raised from 3 to 3½ per cent.

In response to a question from the council a PGE spokesman said that power lines cannot be put underground unless the property owner pays the cost.

He said it would be possible to do such work under a local improvement district (LID).

However, all new developments in the city automatically put utility lines underground.
