Mothers march today to help raise funds

Today, Jan. 18, is the day set for the annual Mother's March of Dimes campaign, according to Mrs. Judy Bowman chairman of the Sandy area drive.

The drive will raise funds for combating the effects of birth defects.

The National Foundation of the March of Dimes sponsors a network of 100 Medical Service programs throughout the county. Through these services, children with birth defects receive diagnosis and treatment by teams of medical experts. Thirty three of the programs also provide genetic counseling. At others, high-risk pregnancies are monitored and intensive care is given to critically ill newborns.

Funds for these programs come from contributions received by our local chapters.

In this area, contributions go to research on diagnosis of biochemical birth defects at the University of Portland Jan. 4, 5, and 6.

Forty secondary school from Oregon and Washington participated in the two and one-half days of tournament and workshop activity. Nine-hundred-fifty students, coaches and judges took part.
