

RED CONFERENCE SWIM MEET MARCH 3-4

BLUE MARLIN swimming coaches Jim Anstine and Sue Hanson (center seated) are surrounded by team members of the Blue Marlin swim team. The team is playing host to the Red Conference Swim Championships this

Saturday and Sunday. Over 400 swimmers will participate in the event which is open to the public. (Post photo)

The Red Conference is one of four subdivisions of the Columbia Basin Swim League. The other subdivisions are the Blue, Green and White Conferences.

The swimming league is operated under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States.

The Red Conference meet this weekend will start on both Saturday and Sunday with warmups at 9 a.m. Events will begin at 10 a.m. and will run through the day.

Individual trophies will be awarded to first place winners in each event and medals to the second through sixth place finishers.

Also special Centennial trophies will be awarded to the outstanding swimmers in each age bracket.

The pool will be closed to the public for swimming during the two days of the meet, but the public is invited to view the championships. There will be no admission charged.
