

Nell's Notes

Due to a bit of a miscalculation, Jerry Beach made a drive-in grocery store out of the store at the Hoodland Park Plaza. It was a bit of a shock to Jerry as well as everyone in the store, as they had not planned on having an open front during this rather inclement weather. No one was hurt, which is the best thing that can be said, and business is going on as usual.

We took off over the mountain on Monday, and that is one way to make you feel full of Christmas spirit. It snowed all the way over to the Maupin cutoff, then it was just cloudy, then lots of blue sky and sun. Sure was nice to see old Sol again. Not that it has been gone from over here that long, it just seems that long.

Anyhow, it was great over at Madras and we enjoyed every minute of being there. On our return trip it snowed all the way back to Government Camp. If it kept it up all Monday night, they should have a pretty good showing of snow.

As usual, Christmas is getting here too early again, and Thanksgiving is late. Can't understand it.
