

Goodwill seeks agents

Goodwill Industries of Oregon is seeking a service club or organization in the Sandy area to represent it in the collection of donated items for use in its on-the-job training program for the handicapped. Through this arrangement, club members would represent Goodwill in Sandy by soliciting and collecting reusable and repairable materials to be contributed to Goodwill. The materials would be stored at a local site and later transported by Goodwill trucks to its main plant in Portland for processing. The club or organization would receive funds for its efforts in the projects, and could use the money for its own community service projects, if desired.

All articles received by Goodwill are repaired and renovated for sale in a Goodwill retail store. Funds derived from the sales are used to provide wages and services for the physically, mentally and emotionally handicapped.

Clubs or organizations interested in such a project should contact Stanley M. Mandel, director of community relations for Goodwill, at 238-6133, for complete information.
