Last look at 1975

THE FUTURE of Sandy received much discussion during 1975 with water, the downtown area and annexation leading in both importance and amount of debate. The new year starts without any of these problems solved.

RUDE AND BARNSTEDT Road residents expressed distaste towards a new development near their homes last year. The motorcycle track being protested against was first banned then allowed to operate during the year.

SHEILA JONES, left, and Gladys Sprouse, center, both teachers aides at Sandy High School, and J.R. Hanning, a senior, store boxes of material as the high school prepared for major remodeling work.

THESE THREE patriots marched in the Sandy Bicentennial parade July 12 when Sandy kicked off the Clackamas County Bicentennial celebration. From left they are Phil Schneider, Jay Hatfield and Angel Leman.

FIRE CREWS lost the battle to save the Chapel of the Hills Church on US Highway 26 when it burned this spring. Efforts are now under way to rebuild the structure.

WORKING to help Sandy's appearance for the Bicentennial kickoff celebration July 10 - 14, are, from left, Lewis R. Johnson, Brent Gupton, Perry Johns and Mark Gupton, all of Sandy. The four worked on parking strips along Proctor Boulevard as just part of a community effort to beautify the city for the Bicentennial.

GOV. BOB STRAUB was guest speaker when the Oral Hull Foundation dedicated its new Rainbow Lodge at Oral Hull park last year. The building is intended for use by the blind.

SANDY CIVIC Services, led by Gary Sandblast, center, led efforts to put on the Bicentennial celebration in Sandy July 10-13. Here Sandblast accepts a $3,000 check from Mrs. Helen Cannon of the Clackamas County Bicentennial Commission as Mayor Mel Hansberg looks on.

IN PREPARING for their Bicentennial activities members of the Mt. Hood Lion club constructed a new putt-putt golf

OUTGOING CITY manager Carl Hatfield Jr. was honored by the Sandy Chamber of Commerce last year for going far beyond the call of duty to work for the betterment of Sandy.
