Golden Age Club

Tables reported sold for Flea Market

A short business meeting and a musical program highlighted the Oct. 14 Golden Age Club potluck at the Sandy Senior Center.

Art Lumley, brother of Alice Will, played popular selections from a few decades ago on the piano. He and his wife live in Red Lodge, Mont. Songs and hymns were performed by Deynee Hallgren and her daughters, Paula and Terry. Eight-year-old Paula accompanied her mother and younger sister on the piano for several of the numbers. Maude Johnson, president, conducted the meeting and Mildred Decker acted as secretary pro-tem in the absence of Martha Steff, who is recuperating from recent surgery.

Flea Market committee member Edith Weidman reported that all tables have been sold for the Nov. 5-6 Flea Market. The Flea Market is sponsored by the Golden Age Club each fall. In the early spring the Flea Market is sponsored by the Sandy Senior Center.

The Golden Age Club also heard a report that 250 people received swine flu shots on Oct. 12.

Door prizes for the day were donated by Gretchen Chilton and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Schockley. Irma Rich of Boring drew the number for the first door prize and Amy Neiman of Sandy won the second door prize.

The table center pieces for the potluck were made by the Brownies. Those working in the kitchen for the dinner were Astri and Walter Torbergson, Zeryl and Margaret Silvers and Joe and Dolly Unger.

Gretchen Case, assistant Sandy Senior Center director announced the following trips: Oct. 26, a trip to KOIN radio; Nov. 2, a trip to the Hickory Farms located in the Lloyd Center.
