Leonard Cool

Leonard W. Cool, 60, of 640 E. Exeter St., Gladstone, and formerly of Sandy, died Oct. 10 in a Portland hospital.

Cool was born in Oklahoma and had lived in Sandy for 10 years. Survivors include: his brother, Virgil Cool, Gladstone; three sisters, Marie Baker, Burns; Pauline Westbrook, Mobeetie, Texas, and Caroline Robinson on Ontario.

Services were Oct. 14 at Willamette National Cemetery with Bateman Funeral Chapel making arrangements.

Kathryn Rea

Services for Kathryn H. Rea, 12942 SE 199th Drive, Boring, were Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Bateman Funeral Chapel in Grxsham.

Mrs. Rea was born in Omaha, Neb., the daughter of Hans and Ida Mae Johnson. She died in Grxsham Oct. 13 at the age of 63.

She has lived in various places throughout her life and resided in the Boring area for the past 18 months.

She is survived by: her husband, Ernest, Boring; children Ronald Ward, Damascus, Danny Feltner, Los Angeles, and Richard Feltner, Colorado. She also is survived by a brother, Culvert Johnson, Lincoln, Neb., and sisters Helen Jurkovich, Covina, Calif., and Betty Packard, Bloomington, Calif.

Burial was at Willamette National Cemetery in Portland.

Buford Sommers

Buford Sommers, Outlook reporter-photographer and former news editor, died Oct. 9 following an acute heart attack in his Portland home at the age of 72.

Sommers was a newspaperman for most of his working life and worked for papers in the Portland Metropolitan area since 1943.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., he began grade school there but as a child moved with his family to Ferwood, Idaho. Reaching his middle teens, he moved to Spokane, Wash. where he attended and graduated from high school.

At age 18, he moved to Seattle to attend the University of Washington. Upon leaving the university, he moved to Wallace, Idaho but soon returned to Spokane. In 1935 he moved to Salt Lake City and finally in 1943, Sommers moved to the Portland area where he lived until his death.

Sommers worked for the following newspapers and news agencies: The Spokane Review, The Associated Press (Spokane), The Salt Lake Telegram, The United Press (Portland), The Oregonian, The Portland Reporter, The Labor Press and The Outlook.

Sommers served as Outlook news editor for a period during the mid-60s, left the paper for a while but returned in 1971 and worked as a reporter-photographer until his death.

He was perhaps best known in recent years for his photography, an art he only took up in the last few years but quickly mastered. Many of the photo-feature pages which have appeared in The Outlook in the '70s have been Sommers' work.

On May 20, 1931 in Walla Walla, Wash., Sommers married Edna Hampson.

The surviving members of his family include: his wife, Edna, Portland; a son, Frank, Las Vegas; and a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Fay, Portland.

There will be no public services.

Cottrell student body elects officers

Cottrell student body officers have been elected for the 1976-77 school year.

Students elected Laura Hunt as president; Cindy Pearsall, vice-president; Nadine Rowland, secretary; Chuck Anderson, fire chief; and John Mills, treasurer.

Elected student body officers from each classroom in the East Building meet once a month as a student council.

The student council determines student policies for scheduled activities such as games and parties.

At the first student council meeting plans were discussed for a student dance on Oct. 29 which will be held in place of a Halloween party in the seventh and eighth grade rooms.

A concession wagon for games was also discussed as a possible way to earn money for student activities. The wagon would serve a variety of refreshments and would be used at games held after school.

In preparation for the student body elections, Cottrell students worked on posters, pins and speeches. Most of the work took place in the English classes.

Candidates signed letters of intent which were a commitment to participate in the events of election week. Campaign managers were selected to assist the candidates.

Market to visit MHCC

Vendors from the Portland Saturday Market will set up booths in the mall area at Mt. Hood Community College, Sunday, Oct. 24 from noon to 5 p.m.

The market will feature a Harvest Festival which will include East County farmers selling produce such as apples, cider and pumpkins for Halloween. Local artists and crafts people will also display their wares.

Civic groups will participate in the festival including local high school bands, boy and girl scout troops, the Gresham Senior Center and local police and fire units.

Free blood pressure tests will be taken by MHCC nursing students. Other students will demonstrate everything from brick-laying to hair-styling. MHCC personnel from counseling, the registrar's office and the office of financial affairs will provide information about the college to visitors.

The Harvest Festival will open with a flag-raising ceremony at noon in front of the main quadrangle of the college, 26000 SE Stark St.

A six-foot scissors made by MHCC welding students will be used in a ribbon-cutting ceremony. MHCC President

R. Stephen Nicholson, and local mayors and representatives from Gresham, Sandy, Wood Village, Cascade Locks, Portland and other district communities will be on hand at the opening of the market.

The "Saturday Market on Sunday" is a project financed through a grant from the Metropolitan Arts Commission. The intent is to introduce the market and promote hand-crafts to communities outside the normal downtown location. Three Sunday markets are financed by the grant.

The festival will be held rain or shine. There is some cover in the mall area of the campus.

Both space is available at the Harvest Festival for residents of the area as well as regular Saturday Market vendors. Items must be hand-crafted of original design. Those interested in participating can call 235-6255 for information.

Estate planning geared to owners

Estate Planning for Forest Owners will be the title of a two-night session offered by the OSU Extension Service. The course will be held in the theater at Clackamas Community College on the evenings of Nov. 1-2.

"The fact that estate planning is complex and the fact that most of us do not feel our deaths are imminent prompts many people to put off estate planning," said Dr. Larry Streeby, OSU Forest Economics specialist.

Streeby cautioned that failure to begin estate planning at an early stage in life may seriously reduce options to provide for heirs and personal needs. He added that one way to make the field less complex is to attend classes like those on Nov. 1-2.

Additional information is available from the OSU Extension Service (655-8631) and pre-registration for the course is advised.

The Klamath Basin is the home of six species of fish not found elsewhere in Oregon, according to the Atlas of Oregon. Those species include the Lost River sucker, Klamath largescale sucker, shortnose sucker, blue club, Klamath sculpin and slender sculpin.
