Black Elk vision to unfold in play

"Black Elk Speaks" will be performed by the Folger's Theatre Group from Washington, D.C., at Mt. Hood Community College at 8 p.m. Monday.

The play, based on a book by John Neihardt, deals with Black Elk's vision, his memories of his second cousin Crazy Horse and the story of his people. Neihardt was Prairie Poet Laureate.

Dr. Robert Albrecht, vice provost of the University of Oregon and former American literature professor, will give a short talk on background information and Neihardt and his work before the performance. Albrecht previously studied under Neihardt.

At 7 p.m. Tuesday, a symposium on the Northwest Fishing Rights treaties is slated. Featured speakers will be Roy Samsel from the Native American Fishing Rights Treaty, and Chuck Voss, representative of the The Steelheaders.

Barre Toelken and Twilo Scofield will perform and lecture throughout the day Wednesday, in addition to giving a noon concert. Toelken is a professor of English, specializing in Native American literature, as well as consultant on Native American Culture to the Smithsonian Institute. Scofield is teacher and music specialist in the public schools and arts consultant for public schools in Oregon, California and Nevada.

A cultural discussion comparing Black roots with Native American roots is scheduled for Thursday evening. The Bow and Arrow Club will provide dances in the lounge at noon, Friday.

"Black Elk Speaks" is funded by a grant from the Oregon Committee for the Humanities and co-sponsored by MHCC and the Urban Indian Community. For more information call 667-7260.

Cindy Cox vies for Mrs. America

Cindy Syd Cox, daughter of Mrs. Barbara Holder of Sandy, will represent Oregon at the Mrs. America Pageant slated at the Las Vegas Hilton on Saturday, April 15.

There will be 51 contestants in the pageant, which will be broadcast nationally on television, Mrs. Holder said.

Mrs. Cox is 32 and married to Gary L. Cox, who is studying to be a hair stylist. Mrs. Cox is a freelance writer. The Coxes live in Portland.

Mrs. Cox has a sister, Mickey, who lives in Hawaii.
