

Jaycees offer bike safety course

KIDS LEARNED the importance of bicycle safety and proper handling at a safety inspection and rally sponsored by the Sandy-Hoodland Jaycees at the Grade School Saturday. Bicycles were examined for proper steering, and braking and other important aspects of bike safety. They then completed a series of tricky turns and maneuvers through several obstacle courses marked by bright orange cones and chalk lines. Pictured here with two of the bikers who received certificates for the course is Tom Botbyl. Susie and Doug Simonson await Tom's arrival. At left, Doug Simonson threads his way through one of the courses.

2 attend state library meet

Sandy City Manager Paul Helton and Sandy resident Joseph L. Miller, Jr., represented Clackamas County at the Statewide Governor's Conference on Library and Information Services June 1-3 in Salem.

The two were among some 130 citizens from every part of Oregon who met with library-related people to discuss how Oregon's information needs should be met in the future.

Those in attendance also addressed themselves to such current issues as how libraries might better serve their communities, the kinds of specialized services libraries should offer, where future library funding should come from and how to increase public awareness of libraries.

Conference resolutions designed to improve library and information services will be presented to the state legislature, local units of government and state library associations.

Eight Oregon delegates will also participate in the October 1979 National White House Conference in Washington, D.C. The Oregon conference, called by Gov. Robert Straub, was co-sponsored by the Oregon State Library and the Oregon Library Association.

State fair show entries available

Entries for the All Oregon Hobby Show, Craft and Collectibles are available this week at the Oregon State Fair office, reports director Ron Ingberg.

"This is a feature of the fair that attracts young and old alike and we are hopeful of the same variety and quality of exhibit that we have had in the past, plus some new and different items," Ingberg said.

Entry applications will be received in the Craft Division, Collectible Division of Antique and Modern Collectibles and in the Theme Division, "It's Fun ... The Oregon State Fair." The application deadline is Aug. 1 but exhibitors can bring or mail entries to the fair on Aug. 19 and 20.

Exhibitors showing their recent handiwork have many choices: china painting; decorative painting on fabric, metal, wood or canvas; and other crafts such as stained glass, decoupage and ceramics.

Entry forms are available now from the fair office at 2330 17th St., NE, Salem or phone 378-3247.

Camp Namanu plans open house

Camp Fire's Camp Namanu will hold an open house for the public on Sunday, June 11.

Visitors may tour the camp, inspect the facilities and meet Camp Director Karen House. Families are encouraged to bring picnic lunches and spend the afternoon.

This is the only time during the summer when the 640-acre camp, located on the Sandy River, is open to the public.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Directions to Camp Namanu may be obtained by calling Camp Fire at 224-7800.

Camp Namanu serves more than 2,000 girls each summer. It has been the main resident camp for the Portland Area Council since 1924.

Fire season starts

Fire season officially started June 7 in the Clackamas-Marion District of the Oregon State Forestry Department, reports Ed Daniels, assistant district forester.

The forest areas will still be open for public and industrial use after the June 7 date. However, fire prevention regulations will be in force.

This means that public forest users will be required to carry with them a bucket, shovel and axe; and industrial operations must meet requirements such as having fire tools, water supply and watchman service at the logging and sawmill sites within the district.

Burning permit regulations will not change, but burning sites may be inspected before a permit is issued.
