Everyone seems to love a county fair. Moderate weather greeted fairgoers last week at the Clackamas County Fair as the threat of rain for a couple of days did not seem to keep the crowds away. The evening rodeo was not affected by the weather as a full house jammed into the stands for the Friday performance. The carnival was enjoyed by many on Friday afternoon as a county youngster rode the merry-go-round (above, going clockwise), two people enjoy the huge slide, several kids bounce around in the tilt-a-world and a carnie looks bored as there are no takers for his ride.
