At Hood View in Boring

Church hosts solar workshop

Soaring heating bills and cold winter months are making conversion to solar heating more attractive to homeowners, but for many the unknown factors of cost and technical steps for implementation are a major hurdle.

A way out of this dilemma is being offered to the public in the form of a series of four weekly classes beginning Feb. 12 at 7 p.m. at the Hood View Seventh-day Adventist Church in Boring.

A general overview of the use of solar energy will be presented in the first class by Doug Boyleyn, a Portland General Electric specialist on energy conservation.

He will demonstrate how various systems work and their applications, the costs which may be incurred with the installation of each type, the potential savings which may be expected through their use and how to get tax credits when the system has been installed.

Specific information will be provided on both active and passive space heating and domestic water heating.

Retro-fitting a home for solar heating will be the subject of the second class on Feb. 19. This session will also deal with solar greenhouse theory and its application. This information will be presented by representatives of Portland Sun, a non-profit, educational organization which provides resource speakers and personnel on energy alternatives.

The following week, Feb. 26, will deal with application of methods of outfitting a home for solar water heating. The final session, set for

Mar. 5, has been reserved for a number of people who have already outfitted their homes to explain how it's actually working for them and what pitfalls to watch out for.

Pre-registration at the church office may be either by mail or in person in order to obtain a discount for all four classes. Registration for single classes is also available.

The church is located at 14385 S.E. 268th Court at Kelso Road just west of Amisiger Road, south of Boring. Telephone 663-5611 for further information.

Clergy invited to seminar for perk-up

Clergy of all faiths have been invited to participate in the third annual Ministry magazine seminar slated for Feb. 3 in the Portland area.

A continuing education-type seminar, the day-long session is designed to enrich the busy pastor with that occasional perk-up needed to stay on the growing edge, according to J.R. Spangler, editor of Ministry.

More than 5,000 ministers from all denominations have attended similar seminars sponsored by Ministry during the past two years. Last year 105 attended two seminars in Oregon.

Speaking at the Portland session, and one in Medford a day earlier, will be Dr. R. Edward Turner, assistant professor of preaching and pastoral care at Andrews University Theological Seminary. His subjects include "Portrait of a Crisis" and "Helping Methods for Pastors."

Another speaker will be Frank Baker of Portland whose subject is "The Minister and His Health." Baker is a health-temperance director for the Oregon Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Dr. Gerald Winslow, theology instructor from Walla Walla College, will feature "Strategies for Moral Development." No registration fee is charged although pre-registration is requested by calling 652-2225, ext. 210. The seminar begins at 9:30 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m. It will be at the Gladstone Adventist Convention Center, 505 Oakfield Road.

Gospel Fellowship meets

A man who has ministered to athletes in every level of athletic competition will be the guest speaker at the January meeting of the Hoodland Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship tomorrow evening.

Al Egg, who has ministered to athletes from high school to the Portland Trailblazers of the National Basketball Association, will address the group at 7 p.m. at TJ's Fireside Dining in Sandy, Friday, Jan. 23.

Egg is married and the father of three children. He is presently president of the Beaverton-Tigard chapter of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship. Throughout his career he has served the Professional Athletes Outreach, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, the Baseball Chapel and the Trailblazers.

Reservations are necessary by this evening, Jan. 22. To obtain reservations, call 668-4695, 665-0254 or 622-4526.

Women's Aglow meet

The Hoodland Women's Aglow Fellowship will welcome an Estacada woman as its guest speaker this Tuesday, Jan. 27, at its monthly meeting at Bowman's Red Lion Inn at Welches from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Kathy Stalcup, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Hash of Estacada, will address the group. She and her husband, Bob, are pastoring the New Life Center Church in Estacada where they began seven years ago as elders and youth directors in the church. Mrs. Stalcup attended the Seattle Bible Training School and Bible Standard College in Eugene.

Reservations are a must and should be made in advance in order to enable the Red Lion to serve the group. The reservations should be made by tomorrow, Jan. 23, by calling 668-4972, 622-4526 or 630-4726.

There is babysitting available, although mothers are asked to bring a sack lunch for their child.

Renowned banjo player George Baker will perform Jan. 23 at the Sandy Chamber of Commerce installation at Bowman's — Red Lion in Welches. Baker played with the early Spike Jones and Turk Murphy bands and is considered by some critics to be the greatest banjo player in the western United States.

Chamber banquet slated

The banjo music of George Baker and his ragtime, banjo-pickin' group will entertain at the Sandy Chamber of Commerce installation banquet 7:30 p.m., Jan. 23, at Bowman's — Red Lion at Welches.

Baker is a favorite with Sandy crowds who heard him play during Sandy Mountain Festival in Meinig Park last summer.

Dick Busby, president of Independent Bank of Sandy, will be installed as new chamber president. Also to be installed are Chuck Jones, vice president, Vicki Ward, secretary, and Ed Storey, treasurer.

Other new board members are Marge Hoffman, Kathleen Eldridge, George Morgan and Arnold Poutala.

The annual banquet will begin at 7:30 p.m., preceded by a no-host cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m.

Master of ceremonies will be outgoing chamber president Bob Kallen, Portland General Electric district manager.

A citizenship award will be presented to the Sandy person considered to have contributed most to the community in the past year.

SBA confabs aimed at new business men

Has the economy got your business in a bind? Are costs up and sales down? Want to know why some businesses succeed and many don't? Want to know more about taxes and your business?

The Small Business Administration and Clackamas Community College are co-sponsoring a series of small business success clinics to help with just such problems.

Subjects covered will be success and failure factors, next Thursday, Jan. 29; attracting new customers, Feb. 5; managing dollars in a crunch, Feb. 12; and taxes and the small business, Feb. 19. There will be different speakers for every topic, with each one an expert in his field.

There will also be pertinent SBA publications distributed at each class, and there will be ample time for questions and discussion.

Each class will be held in Community Center 101 from 7 to 10 p.m. For information and registration, call 657-8400, ext. 233.
