

Melvin Haneberg of the Sandy Kiwanis Club puts finishing touches on puzzle-board learning devices he built in his garage for use by local grade school children with handicapping conditions.

Kiwanis project to aid Sandy youth

Some 130 local grade school children with handicapping conditions get a helping hand Thursday with presentation of wooden-puzzle learning boards for a new "toy" library at Kelso School.

The learning aids are a labor of love by former Sandy mayor Mel Haneberg and his Sandy Kiwanis Club.

Haneberg spent approximately 200 hours at his home garage workbench crafting the wooden puzzle boards, with help in planning from Kiwanis club major emphasis chairman Howard Berger.

The slates challenged children with handicapping conditions to match similar shapes, match colors with corresponding word designations, matching numbers with numerals and identify letters by shapes.

The 130 local students with handicapping conditions in grades one through eight fall into several groups.

Some lack eye-ear-hand coordination, while others have visual motor perception at a skill level deficient for a comfortable first-grade setting.

Others upon entering school lack directionality — the ability to track left to right, as needed in reading.

The 22 puzzle boards crafted by the Kiwanis club should be helpful, according to special education director Ralph Branson, since the boards match two columns — left to right.

A recent review of district problem areas revealed that 60 percent of local handicapping conditions are learning disabilities and that the biggest need for special help exists at Kelso School.

Consequently, the donated puzzle boards will be housed in a check-out toy library in Kelso's Resource Room.

Concerned parents can check out the learning aids to help their children with drills at home.

Boring lists honor students

Boring Grade School this week announced its honor roll and Citizenship Awards for the third nine weeks of school. Students must maintain a grade point average of 3.2, out of a possible 4.0, or better in order to qualify for the honor roll.

Studded tires illegal

Studded tires on Oregon's highways are illegal after next Thursday, April 30, H. Scott Coulter, state highway engineer, said this week.

Studded tires are permitted on the state's highway system by statute from Nov. 1 to April 30. Motorists are asked to remove their studded tires as soon as possible if not needed because of the damage to road surfaces where there is no ice or snow.

Drug awareness seminar slated next Thursday

A drug-awareness seminar aimed at educating parents about the problems of drug abuse in school-age children and how to deal with those problems will be held next Thursday, April 30, at Sandy Elementary School at 7:30 p.m.

The seminar, sponsored by the Sandy Building Parent Teacher Club, is designed to make parents aware of drugs they can be on the lookout for and the symptoms of abuse of those drugs, according to organizers.

Dave Eagle, counselor at Cedar Ridge School, and a speaker from the Multnomah Medical Society will offer information on drug problems and ways of discussing drugs with children. Materials, designed to assist with family discussions, will be distributed.
