

More Efficient Dryers Consume Less Energy

Today's new improved gas dryers have energy-saving features — like pilotless ignition and automatic shut-off when the clothes are dry — that help conserve gas, according to the American Gas Association.

A new gas dryer can reduce the use of gas for drying clothes by up to 30 percent. Compared to an older gas dryer, a new energy-efficient model can save the consumer up to $62 in life-time operating costs.

A gas clothes dryer requires very little maintenance and can usually be attended to in seconds. Keeping the lint screen clean is very important for efficient, economical dryer operation.

Dial the correct degree of dryness. Clothes will turn out better (especially permanent press) and drying time can be reduced.
